Value of stakes to winner, $24,620; to second horse, $3,416.67; to third horse, $2,833.33.

The largest crowd of the racing year saw the stout-hearted and honest colt Sweep romp in winner by half a dozen lengths in the fifth triumph for James R. Keene for the Futurity, the richest prize of the American turf, at Sheepshead Bay yesterday. The only real contest at the end was between Candleberry, owned by the Montpelier Stable of Richard T. Wilson, Jr., and the Keene stable's second starter, Grasmere, with Candleberry closing stoutly from far back in the crowd, and in the run down the stretch beating Grasmere a neck for second money. Even as the place was decided Mr. Keene won new honors, for both the winner and the second horse are by his Bramble stallion Ben Brush, the winner being of Mr. Keene's own breeding at his Castleton Stud, while Candleberry is the fruit of a gift season to Ben Brush, the second horse's breeders being William Lakeland, formerly trainer for Mr. Keene, and William L. Powers.

Thirteen horses ran for the big event, but from the head of the stretch to the winning post Sweep left his competitors in easy style, and was going further away at every jump when he finished first for the great prize, worth $30,876 gross, Sweep gaining $24,620 as the share of the winner and nominator of the winner, and Grasmere getting $2,833.33 as the third horse, the total earnings of the two horses for Mr. Keene being $26,050 and $500 for Clarence H. Mackay, the breeder and nominator of Grasmere.

15,000 At Fall Opening.

The race for the Futurity, renewed for the twenty-second time yesterday, and the occasion of a turf holiday every year since the event was won in its first running by Proctor Knott, marked the opening of the Autumn turf season on the metropolitan tracks and the beginning of the Coney Island Jockey Club's Fall meeting, and the general public, and especially the patrons of racing, responded in such numbers as to cause the biggest surprise of the day when the crowd was assembled fully, and the three tiers of the grand stand, the clubhouse balconies, and the lawn were crowded with the biggest and most brilliant patronage of the year. Official estimates of the crowd placed the attendance at 15,000, with a singularly strong representation of the fashionable element in the boxes and clubhouse, and an impressive array of automobiles parked behind the grand stand and streaming along the road in a seemingly endless parade on the homecoming. The weather was delightfully clear and pleasantly cool, and the conditions were so favorable that the display of gowns and millinery and the proportion of women in the crowd of spectators were equal to the best traditions of fashionable and popular Sheepshead Bay.

Mr. Keene Congratulated.

The track was like velvet, and Sweep's performance in winning the Futurity in 1:11 4-5 was ranked with the best performances for the race, as Sweep, with his corrected weight, 126 pounds, instead of 130, as appeared on the official programme, carried the highest weight that has been carried by a winner of the stakes since His Highness won, in 1891, and the distance was changed to full six furlongs straight. Sweep's victory, as a strong public favorite, was immensely popular, as there was not a question that the best horse was first. Mr. Keene witnessed the race from the clubhouse balcony, surrounded by friends and leading turfmen, and congratulations were showered on him when, with Sweep, he achieved the singular triumph of winning the Futurity three times consecutively with horses of his own breeding, Sweep's predecessors as Futurity winners from Castleton being Colin in 1907 and Maskette in 1908. Mr. Keene's earlier winners were Domino, in 1893, and Chaconac, in 1889.

The great race was run as the fourth event of the card, and changes made when the official starters were announced took out three horses, Big Stick, Dullcare, and Glennadeane of the original fourteen entries, while the Quincy Stable's Sandrian and S. J. Doggett's Angerona were added, making the field number thirteen runners.

From the moment the horses were off the track after the running of the third race the rails of the track were lined with eager spectators of the warming-up canters of the Futurity colts and fillies, and the paddock swarmed with visitors, most of these partisans of the stables represented in the race. Mr. Keene himself was in the largest group about Sweep and Grasmere, the public favorites, but great crowds also collected about Mr. Wilson's Candleberry, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson watching the saddling, and about James E. Gaffney's fifteen-thousand-dollar colt Barleythorpe, bought at Saratoga with the one hope of winning the Futurity. There were tips out on every horse in the race, and even the maidens running had admirers and partisans, for the general view of the race was that it was

LOSES RACE WITH DEATH.

Special Trolley Brought Doctor, but Pastor Rescued from Sea Died.

FREEPORT, L. I., Aug. 30.—Rev. Stanley W. Roberts, 25 years old, of the Freeport Baptist Church, was drowned while swimming off Point Lookout Beach this afternoon. He was boarding at the beach with the family of H. C. Meyers. With young Mr. Meyers he went in bathing this afternoon.

Mr. Roberts, when out some distance, called for aid. Meyers went to the rescue and the two nearly were drowned before others from the beach could get to them and haul them into shallow water. Mr. Roberts was almost dead when he was brought ashore, and Mr. Meyers was unconscious, but still breathing. They were carried to Ellison's pavilion.

A special trolley car raced to the end of the line, where in response to a telephone call Dr. Carman of Freeport hastened, and as soon as he was aboard the trolley car went full speed back to the beach. The doctor was too late to save Mr. Roberts, but brought Mr. Meyers around.

Mr. Roberts had been pastor of the local church for three years. He was not married.

BOAT UPSETS, GIRLS DROWN.

Two Lost When Sailing Craft Capsizes in Egg Harbor.

OCEAN CITY, N. J., Aug. 30.—Alice Boisnot, 15 years old, and Marie Mueller, 16, daughters of Philadelphia cottagers here, were drowned to-night while sailing in Great Egg Harbor. Two boys were with them in a small sailboat, which drifted against a trolley bridge that crosses the bay from Sommers Point to Ocean City. A car passing over the bridge hit the mast of the boat and caused it to capsize.

The two boys became panic-stricken and saved themselves by climbing to the bridge. Two passengers on the trolley car jumped from the car and into the boat, which had righted itself after the girls had been thrown into the water. They made every effort to reach the girls, who were carried toward the inlet by the swift current, but were unsuccessful.

STOPS RUNAWAY DAUGHTER.

But Mr. Horn Drove So Rapidly That Horse's Owner Demands $50.

Special to The New York Times.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Aug. 30.—A sequel to an attempted elopement came to-day when J. F. Horn of Brooklyn paid $50 to cover the damage to a horse which he drove at breakneck speed from the Village of Chester to Warrensburg Saturday night in order to intercept his daughter, Miss Hattie Horn.

Mr. and Mrs. Horn and their daughter were Summer guests at a cottage four miles from Chester. Adjoining this resort is a farmhouse in which Bert Tripp lives. The young couple decided to be married. They drove to Warrensburg Saturday, from which place they had planned to take the trolley to Glens Falls. While they were waiting for the car Mr. Horn was on his way to Warrensburg.

He telephoned a Deputy Sheriff to arrest his daughter. The Deputy Sheriff followed directions, but upon being told by Miss Horn that she was 19 years old he gave up the task.

Three minutes before the anxiously awaited car arrived, Mr. Horn came tearing down the street, having made the trip from Chester with two relays of horses. He took the girl back to the cottage in the mountains with her name unchanged.

To-day the man from whom the horse for the last half of the trip to Warrensburg was hired, swore out a warrant for the arrest of Mr. Horn, alleging that his horse had been seriously injured in the wild chase. The constable to whom the warrant was given went to the cottage this morning only to find that Mr. Horn had gone to Riverside to take the train for New York.

Upon arriving at Riverside the constable found that the train had left. He immediately telephoned to Thurman, asking the local constable to make the arrest. The constable got his man. Telephoning to the owner of the horse, Mr. Horn found that $50 damages were demanded. Mr. Horn paid, taking the next train for New York. Mrs. Horn and her daughter remain at the cottage.

MRS. KATE SOFFEL DEAD.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., Aug. 30.—Mrs. Kate Soffel, the liberator of the Biddle brothers from the Allegheny County Jail on Jan. 30, 1902, died at the West Pennsylvania Hospital to-day of typhoid fever. Her daughter, Margaret, is a nurse in the institution.

Edward and Jack Biddle and Frank Dorman, after committing a number of burglaries in Pittsburg, shot and killed T. Kahney, a grocer, and in the capture of Edward Biddle Detective Fitzgerald lost his life. The Biddle brothers were sentenced to be hanged, and Dorman is serving a life sentence.

Mrs. Soffel was the wife of Warden Peter Soffel, and she carried on a flirtation with Edward Biddle through the bars of his cell from her rooms. She became infatuated with him and carried him revolvers and files in her stockings while her father, Conrad H. Dietrich, acted as guard.

At 4:15 A. M. on Jan. 30 the Biddles broke through their cells and shot a guard named Reynolds and locked up George Costello and James McGeary, guards, in cells. Mrs. Soffel was waiting for them and took them out through the Warden's residence to the street.

Two days later they were overtaken at Chestnut Ridge, Butler County, and a battle took place in the snow. The Biddles were mortally wounded and died twenty-four hours later, and Mrs. Soffel was struck by a bullet in the side. She was sentenced to two years in the Western Penitentiary. After her release she made an attempt to star in a drama, "A Desperate Chance," which was enjoined by the Fayette County Court, and later took up dressmaking.

LINER COLLIDES WITH WHALE.

PLYMOUTH, Aug. 30.—The steamer Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse arrived here to-day from New York. While off the Banks of Newfoundland she collided with a seventy-foot whale, evidently asleep on the surface of the water.

The whale was impaled on the liner's bows, and all its efforts to free itself were futile. Finally the steamer had to go full speed astern in order to get clear of the dying leviathan.

KNOX'S COUNSELLOR TO BE HENRY HOYT

BALLINGER HURRYING ON

Expected to Clear Up Conservation Row—Tafts Lease the Beverly Cottage for Another Season.

BEVERLY, Mass., Aug. 30.—President Taft disposed of important State Department matters to-day with Secretary Knox and closed an exceptionally busy afternoon with the announcement that he has decided to make Beverly the Summer capital again next year. President Taft has taken another season's lease of the cottage he has occupied this Summer on Woodberry Point, one of the prettiest locations on Beverly Cove. The town is rejoicing to-night.

Among the announcements made to-day was the choice of Henry Hoyt, ex-Solicitor General, as Counsellor of the State Department. This is a newly created office, and Secretary Knox expressed himself as delighted that he was able to obtain the services of Mr. Hoyt to give the new office a proper dignity from the first. The Counsellor of the department will deal with all the large legal questions and will have especial supervision over the negotiations of treaties. The important Japanese treaty is to be entered into within the next two years, and Mr. Hoyt will devote himself largely to the framing of this measure. Mr. Knox feels that a long existing want in the department has been happily filled.

Secretary Knox also took up with the President the organization of the new Far Eastern Bureau of the State Department, and announced an additional appointment to that service. Ransford Stevens Miller, Jr., Japanese Secretary, and interpreter of the American Legation at Tokio, will return to the United States to enter the new department. While no head of the bureau has been decided upon as yet, it is said the honor will fall either to Mr. Williams, who has been advanced from Consul General at Tien-Tsin to this bureau, or Mr. Miller.

The Far Eastern Bureau will have for its purpose the fostering of American trade relations in the Orient. President Taft is especially interested in this direction. Mr. Knox, in choosing members of the bureau, has sought men who are thoroughly familiar with the people and customs of the Orient.

Secretary Knox made the further announcement that Charles M. Pepper and M. H. Davis, special agents of the Department of Commerce and Labor, had been transferred to the new Bureau of Trade Relations on the Tariff in the State Department. This bureau is in no way connected with the new tariff commission authorized in the Payne bill, but will have special functions of its own in investigating trade relations between various foreign countries, and advising the department on commercial questions arising out of foreign intercourse. Mr. Pepper and Mr. Davis are both well-known investigators. Mr. Pepper has traveled the whole world over. Mr. Davis has just returned from a bleached flour investigating expedition abroad.

In announcing to-day his decision to return to Beverly next Summer, President Taft took occasion to pay a high compliment to his Summer neighbors and fellow-citizens. He declared that they had made his stay in Beverly exceedingly agreeable, had been as considerate as possible in every way, and that he and Mrs. Taft could not express too strongly their appreciation of these facts. The President has been delighted with his stay here. He is well pleased with the cottage he is occupying, likes the location and the fine automobile roads, and says he wants to come again next year for a much longer stay. The President said some time ago that his idea of an ideal vacation was to do the same thing over and over again day after day. Now he declares he wants to come back to a place he knows something about. Before becoming President Mr. Taft went to Murray Bay, Canada, every Summer for sixteen years.

Secretary Knox discussed briefly with the President to-day the details of his meeting with President Diaz of Mexico at El Paso, Texas, Oct. 16. The arrangements for the extraordinary exchange of courtesies are being made through the State Department, by direction of Secretary Knox, and the completed programme will be presented to the President later on for approval. When he receives President Diaz at El Paso the President will be accompanied by four Cabinet officers—Secretary of State Knox, Secretary of War Dickinson, Postmaster General Hitchcock, and Secretary of Commerce and Labor Nagel.

A detachment of United States troops will also be drawn up at attention. After receiving President Diaz on American territory, President Taft will cross the international bridge over the Rio Grande and return the visit at Ciudad Juarez, Mexico. When the brief formalities of this call are ended, President Taft will return to the United States for rest, and later in the evening will go again across the line to Juarez, to attend a banquet tendered by the Mexican Government.

BALLINGER TO SEE TAFT SOON.

Is Expected to Clear Up the Trouble Over Conservation.

BEVERLY, Mass., Aug. 30.—Secretary of the Interior Ballinger, who is now on his way to Washington from Seattle, is coming to Beverly within the next ten days to see the President. He notified Mr. Taft by telegraph to-day that he was en route to Washington to attend to some important matters of business. As soon as conditions then permit Mr. Ballinger will hurry on to Beverly to see the President before the latter starts for the West on Sept. 15.

President Taft said to-day that so far as he was concerned there was nothing in particular that he desired to take up with Mr. Ballinger. He has enjoyed thoroughly the visits of his different Cabinet officers in the last three weeks. He feels somewhat isolated here on the north shore, and the calls of the Cabinet officers keep him in touch with affairs at Washington.

He refrains from discussing or in any way taking public cognizance of the controversy which has been waged between Chief Forester Pinchot and Secretary Ballinger over the conservation plans of the present Administration. Subordinates in the Government service have been quoted pretty freely from Washington of late in giving their views on the controversy, and there is little doubt expressed here but that Mr. Ballinger is on his way there to take a hand in affairs and to straighten things out so far as he is concerned.

EARL GREY LOST, JUST MISSES DEATH

WENT INTO WOODS TO HUNT

Wanders for Five Hours Before Search Party Finds Him After Night Has Come.

Special to The New York Times.

VICTORIA, B. C., Aug. 30.—Earl Grey, Governor General of Canada, who returned from Dawson and Skagway by the Government steamer Quadra to-day, had a narrow escape from death when he was lost in the woods of Jervis Inlet, Northern British Columbia, for five and a half hours on Saturday.

He was on a shooting expedition with only a dog for company. He told of nearly falling over a precipice in the darkness when rescued by a searching party, headed by Major Clark, his orderly, and Second Officer Johnston of the Quadra. Many search parties had been sent into the woods after fires were built along the shore line to attract the attention of the lost Governor General. He was utterly exhausted when found and his clothing was badly torn.

He left the Quadra at 5:30 P. M. and went into the woods where Lord Lascelles the previous day had killed a mountain goat and two deer. After penetrating some distance into the woods he lost his way, and night came on. When he failed to return for dinner there was intense excitement on the Quadra, and the steamship's whistle was kept blowing constantly, fires were built on the beach, and search parties were sent into the woods.

Meanwhile the Governor General clambered over fallen trees, fought his way through undergrowth, and slid down rocks in the darkness, tearing his clothing to rags. On one occasion he came to the edge of a precipice, feeling his way with an alpenstock which he carried as well as a rifle. The alpenstock slipped from his hand and clattered a considerable distance below.

Then he realized what a narrow escape from death he had had. His dog was missing, and he feared it had fallen over the precipice, but it returned afterward.

He turned back, and failing in the darkness to find his way, finally, after many struggles, sank down exhausted. He had spent five and a half hours in unavailing effort. He was so hungry and exhausted that he leaned against what he thought was a log, but it proved to be a shadow, and he tumbled into the undergrowth.

Then he sank down on a flat rock to wait for daylight. Soon afterward he saw the reflection of a fire. It was an Indian encampment. He fired his rifle and the shot was heard by a search party.

They hurried him to the shore, where the waiting boat took him quickly to the Quadra, on which he was received with joy. His daughter, Lady Sybil Grey, Lord Lascelles, and other members of the party had been anxious.

PRIEST SPEEDS TO DYING MAN.

Newark Police Step Aside to Let Him Pass—Worker Dies of Fall.

Speeding through the business section of Newark, N. J., on a bicycle at a pace that brought policemen to the middle of the streets in haste to halt him until they saw who he was, the Rev. John A. Kiernan of St. Patrick's Cathedral, that city, succeeded in reaching the excavation for the new Prudential Building in Newark yesterday just in time to administer the last rites to John Hartlett, who had fallen into the deepest part of the hole. Hartlett died a few moments after Father Kiernan reached him.

Hartlett was endeavoring to pull himself to street level when a joist he was clinging to gave way and he fell forty feet below. Two fellow-workmen, perceiving that the fall had meant death, ran without hesitation five blocks to the cathedral to summon the priest. The latter arrived before the hospital ambulance, and finding that no one had been down to the man made the perilous descent alone to administer extreme unction.

Following the accident the workmen expressed themselves as too greatly moved to continue their labors, and nothing further was done on the building during the day. This is the second death within ten days on the work, which also has been seriously troubled with strikes.

NEVER HEARD OF LINCOLN.

Applicant for Citizenship Papers Asks If He Lived in Hoboken.

In Jersey City yesterday Matteo Vallone, an Italian, who is a tailor living at 407 Paterson Plank Road, West Hoboken, appeared before Judge Carey and made application for citizenship. He told the Judge he had been in this country twenty-two years.

"Do you know who Abraham Lincoln was?" asked Judge Carey.

"No, I don't know who he was."

"You don't know who Abraham Lincoln was?" repeated the Judge.

"No, does he live in West Hoboken?" asked the applicant.

"He is dead," said Judge Carey.

"Well, I never heard of him," continued the Italian. "Was he a tailor?"

The Judge advised him to go home and study up on history and geography, and said: "No man who does not know who Abraham Lincoln was is fit to enjoy the privilege of American citizenship."

When asked to name six of the United States, Vallone answered, "New Jersey, New York, Boston, West Hoboken, Union Hill, and Hoboken."

FIRE DROVE 1,400 CHILDREN TO BEACH

Two of Six Orphan Asylum Buildings at Rockaway Destroyed —All Out Safely.

FIRE HOSE WAS DEFECTIVE

Children Were Huddled on the Sand for a Time and Then Cared for by Cottagers and in Hotels.

Two of the five buildings comprising St. Malachi's Roman Catholic Orphan Asylum, at Rockaway Park, and housing over 600 boys and girls, were destroyed by fire which started shortly before 8 o'clock last night. Within three minutes from the sounding of the asylum fire gong, all the children were safely quartered on the beach, which faces the home. There was not the slightest semblance of panic, the children being marched out in an orderly manner by the sisters.

Near by are the Hebrew Sanitarium for Children, in which were 500 children, and the St. George's Children's Home, housing 300 children. Fearing that the flames might spread to these places, the authorities of both also turned their charges out on the beach, so that at one time there were over 1,400 children, ranging all the way from 2 to 14 years, on the beach. Many of them were in their nightgowns, having been hustled out in such quick time that dressing was out of the question. However, there were plenty of blankets on hand, and all seemed to enjoy their unexpected night's outing.

St. Malachi's Asylum fronts on Triton Avenue, with Beach Street and First Avenue bounding it on either side. The fire started in the four-story building. The first floor is used as the laundry, while above that is the sewing room. The other two floors are dormitories. All the younger children were in bed at the time, while the others were in the chapel for evening prayer, just before retiring.

Father Kivloy, the head of the asylum, first saw the flames from his office. His assistant was conducting prayers, and about the same time saw the flames through the chapel windows. He bade the children remain quiet, and then a moment later, as the big fire gong clanged, ordered all to march quietly from the church to the beach. This they did in double column. With them went a few of the twenty-five sisters.

Father Kilvoy and the others then turned to the other buildings where the children were in bed. In incredibly short time all were roused and taken to the beach. A last search revealed one little fellow, Edward Tolan, curled up in bed. He had slept through all the bustle and the noise of the fire alarm. With him accounted for all were safe.

By this time the fire was burning fiercely in the laundry building, and it seemed that the whole block was doomed. Four alarms were turned in, which brought apparatus from Far Rockaway, Arverne, Rockaway Beach, and Rockaway Park. Acting Chief Lenahan was in charge, but the hose was of such poor quality and the water pressure so bad that their work was made doubly hard. Sparks set fire to the chapel building, which is four stories high, the top three being used as dormitories. However, good work by the firemen confined the blaze to these two buildings, which were ruined.

On the beach a large crowd numbering tens of thousands had assembled. The cottages and hotels for a long way around were emptied by the fire. The first thought of the spectators was for the children. Those from the Jewish home and St. George's home were taken back to bed when it was seen that danger from fire to them was past. But there still remained the 600 St. Malachi children.

The smoke and water, outside the damage done by the flames, precluded the use of the asylum. The difficulty was got over by the cottagers and guests of the hotels in the neighborhood offering shelter to the children. Some took as many as twenty-five, while others offered to be responsible for a couple. Two hundred and fifty found temporary shelter in Public School 42, mattresses for them having been salved from the asylum.

Among those taking children were William Hirsch of the Lenox Stable, Seventy-fifth Street, Manhattan; Alderman Samuel Marx, who volunteered to look after fifty; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Strasbourger, and David Hess, a New York lawyer. Edward Clancy of Boston, who is staying at the Park Inn, acted as manager in getting the children taken care of. The remaining children were distributed among the hotels and cottages near by.

The origin of the fire, which is said to have done $15,000 damage, is not known.

WILL OPEN SUTTON'S GRAVE.

Mother of Late Naval Lieutenant Gets Permit from Department.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—A permit was granted to-night to Mrs. James N. Sutton to have the body of her son, Lieut. James N. Sutton, which is buried in Arlington National Cemetery, disinterred and an autopsy performed. The permit was received by her to-night from the War Department. It was signed by the Secretary of War, and had no long list of restrictions and conditions appended to it such as appeared on the permit of Aug. 24, which was withheld. When Mrs. Sutton is ready for the autopsy, all that will be necessary will be for her to give the War Department one day's notice in order to have the grave opened and the body transported to the Naval Hospital. Mrs. Sutton said to-night that she would do nothing in the matter until the return of her attorney, Henry Davis, about Thursday. He is now in New York.

Dr. George Tully Vaughn of this city will look after the interests of Mrs. Sutton at the disinterment and at the examination at the hospital. Mrs. Sutton, Attorney Davis, and a representative of the army and navy, probably Surgeon Spear, will also be present. No crowd will be permitted to gather at the grave.

Mrs. Sutton said that her plans for the future would be governed by the conditions found to exist after the grave was opened and an examination made.

TAFT'S SUNDAY HAIRCUT.

Ignored Massachusetts Law and Made a Good Impression on the Barber.

Special to The New York Times.

BEVERLY, Mass., Aug. 30.—The Massachusetts law forbids all work except for necessity or charity on Sunday, but President Taft had his hair cut on Sunday. Both the barber who did the work, Mattis S. Enos, and the President would have been subject to a fine of $5 each if the Beverly police could have heard of the dark, secret goings-on at the Taft home.

"Mr. Taft is a very fine man," said Enos to-day. "He smiled and joked and talked with his family while I cut his hair, and was very genial indeed."

MOON TO ECLIPSE MARS.

Will Be Visible in This Country on Night of Sept. 1.

GENEVA, N. Y., Aug. 30.—An interesting eclipse of Mars by the moon, visible throughout the United States, will occur on Wednesday evening, Sept. 1, according to a bulletin issued by Prof. William R. Brooks at Smith Observatory to-day. The phenomenon will last about an hour, beginning in the longitude of Washington at 8:42 P. M. and ending at 9:39. At places west of Washington the occultation will occur earlier and at places east of Washington later.

The eclipse will be visible to the naked eye, but the use of a small field glass, which will bring it clearly within observation, is advised by Prof. Brooks.

HUDSON STEAMBOAT BURNED.

The Norwich Was to Have Taken Part in Hudson-Fulton Celebration.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Aug. 30.—The Norwich, said to have been the oldest steamboat in active use, was burned to the water line at her dock here to-night. The old sidewheeler had for many decades been used to break up the ice in the Hudson River every Spring at the beginning of the towing season.

The Norwich, which was built seventy years ago, was to have taken a prominent part in the Hudson-Fulton Celebration this Fall. The loss to her owners, the Cornell Steamboat Company, is about $50,000.

RUSH WORK ON ECONOMY.

Almost All Department Estimates Submitted Weeks Ahead of Time.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—The estimates for expenditures for the next fiscal year, which have been submitted by practically all of the departments of administration, already have been carefully gone over and revised by the Treasury officials, and will be further considered before they are in the shape in which they will be finally submitted to Congress in December.

Heretofore it has been the custom for the heads of the Government departments to submit their estimates about Oct. 15.

DROUGHT IN PENNSYLVANIA.

Crops in the Schuylkill Valley Are Badly Damaged.

READING, Penn., Aug. 30.—Drought conditions in Schuylkill Valley are worse to-day than at any period in fifty years. But one and a half inches of rain fell in this vicinity since July 1. The corn in some localities is drying up and has the appearance of fodder.

Many wells and springs are dried up. The potato crop will be a failure. Pasture is scarce and many of the farmers are now feeding hay and bran. The Reading Railway Company still has a supply of water for most of its collieries, but this, too, is becoming low.

Mrs. Belmont Will Be at 505 Fifth Avenue After Sept. 20.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 30.—Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont was asked this afternoon as to the results of the woman suffrage meetings held at her residence last week. She said that they had been satisfactory and that the financial outcome was pleasing as well.

Headquarters will be opened at 505 Fifth Avenue, New York, on Sept. 15. During that week Mrs. Belmont will go there for a few days.

Mrs. Belmont plans to close her Newport season and be at the headquarters permanently after Sept. 20.

$6.50 COAL TO-MORROW.

Dealers Announce High Price Will Last Till April.

The coal dealers in this city, it was announced yesterday, will increase the retail price of anthracite for domestic use to-morrow to $6.50 a ton, which will be its highest price, and will continue until April, 1910, when the customary reduction of 50 cents a ton will be made. The dealers said yesterday that so little demand for domestic anthracite developed during the talk of a strike last year that they had been caught with large stocks on hand in anticipation of a strike, and as a result some of the dealers sold anthracite at less than the schedule price in order to use the money which was tied up in coal stocks.

GATES WEDDING FEE $1,005.

He Meets Old Pastor and Gives Him Check for $1,000.

Special to The New York Times.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 30.—As John W. Gates was stepping into his private car at the King Street Station here, a white-haired man stepped up and extended his hand.

"Hello, John!" he said.

"Well, how are you, Mr. Foster," replied Mr. Gates as he vigorously shook the hand.

Forty years ago Mr. Foster was minister of the little Methodist Church at St. Charles, Ill. He married Mr. Gates, then living on a big farm south of Turner Junction, Ill., and Della Baker, whose father was Superintendent of the Sunday school.

"When you married me I only gave you a five-dollar fee, but I'll make up for it now," said Mr. Gates, as he wrote his check for $1,000, handed it to the astounded minister, and swung aboard his car as the train pulled out.

FIVE-DAY TRIP NOW FROM HERE TO LONDON

Mauretania's Passengers, Leaving Here Wednesday, Dine in English Capital Monday.

FISHGUARD ROUTE IS USED

Atlantic Record Lowered Nearly Three Hours—Total Traveling Time 5 Days 9 Hours and 22 Minutes.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—The fastest transit from New York to London—counting from the pier on the Hudson River to the station platform here—has been reduced to 5 days 9 hours and 22 minutes by the latest achievement of the big Cunarder Mauretania on her first voyage by the Fishguard route. The Mauretania dropped anchor at the little port on the coast of South Wales at 1:15 P. M. to-day, her four tenders took off passengers and mails, and a special train on the Great Western Railway, which made the run of 262 Miles in 4 hours and 30 minutes, deposited the passengers in London at 7:28 this evening.

On the voyage over the Mauretania surpassed the best previous record either eastward or westward between New York and Queenstown, cutting off two hours and fifty-four minutes from the quickest time made before, and making the passage in 4 days 14 hours and 27 minutes. She was at Queenstown at 7:27 A. M., landed her Irish mails and passengers, and at 7:45 A. M. was on her way across St. George's Channel, so that the passage to Fishguard, too, was made at remarkable speed.

Passengers Are Enthusiastic.

Thus the passengers who lunched on board the steamship last Wednesday could all have dined at a seasonable hour in London this evening. In fact, 105 out of 240 first-cabin passengers landed at Fishguard. Every one expressed satisfaction with the new arrangement. Business men especially are enthusiastic over it. Congressman J. V. V. Olcott and William W. Gooch of New York were enthusiastic in praise of the new arrangement.

Theodore Siedenburg, the cotton broker, left at once for Bremen, intending to reach there, if possible, before the arrival of passengers by the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, which left New York twenty-four hours earlier than the Mauretania. He is hastening to the bedside of his sick father, but, aside from the urgency of the summons, is desirous of the distinction of making a quicker transfer from New York to Bremen than any one has ever done before.

Over all other ports of call, it is held that Fishguard saves to the traveler at least six hours between Queenstown and London. The best record of the North German Lloyd to Plymouth is 5 days 8 hours and 7 minutes, made by the Kronprinzessin Cecilie, which means, approximately, 5 days 12 hours and 37 minutes from New York to London, or three hours and a quarter longer than the transit by Mauretania to Fishguard and thence by train to London. Fishguard presents the advantage of requiring fifty miles less ocean transit and a considerable distance less of land transit than Holyhead with London as the objective point.

Transfer in Open Roadstead.

When the great passenger steamer appeared on the sea horizon southwest of Strumble Head soon after noon today it seemed that a large part of the population of South Wales must have been gathered upon the neighboring heights and along the shores of the little harbor. The day was beautiful, the air cool and exhilarating, and the spectacle became fascinating as the tenders swarmed out to meet the steamship.

The racer did not venture in beyond a line even with an unfinished breakwater, and the small steamers on which the mails and passengers were landed bobbed up and down beside her huge stable bulk like so many brightly daubed corks. It was apparent that in weather even only slightly rough she would have to go much further into the port. Otherwise it would be impossible to make the transfer of mail and passengers at Fishguard. It is expected that if the Cunard Company decides that this first experiment is successful the water alongside the new breakwater pier will be dredged to forty feet and the steamships will be moored to it instead of standing out in the open roadstead. Besides increased safety, there would be thus considerable economy of time.

Capt. Pritchard of the Mauretania, when he was congratulated upon the success of his voyage, expressed himself as greatly gratified at the result. The passengers on the Mauretania were aware that the voyage was virtually a race with the North German Lloyd steamship, which left New York bound for Plymouth exactly twenty-four hours before them, but they saw nothing of the latter during the whole voyage. If the Mauretania overtook and passed her the ships must have been a wide distance apart.

The Mauretania's day's runs to Brow Head were as follows: 590, 580, 584, 578, 475; total distance, 2,807 knots, at average of 25.41 knots.

LONDON, Aug. 31.—The London morning papers make a big feature of the successful inauguration of the Fishguard route, which brings New York within five days of London. It is heralded as a great triumph of organization on the part of the Cunard and railway companies. Fishguard, they say, now takes rank with Liverpool, Southampton, and other great ocean ports, and rapid development is anticipated.

The railway companies intend, as soon as sufficient passengers justify the step, to run a special train to Dover for Continental traffic, so as to avoid the delay of transference at London. Thus the journey from Fishguard to Dover will be reduced to seven hours, which will place the Cunard Company on an equality with the German lines for Paris and Continental traffic.

It is believed here that as soon as the superiority of the new route is realized the Government will be compelled to abandon the regulation requiring mail boats to call at Queenstown.

MAKE FRAUD CHARGE AGAINST M. J. RICKARD

OWN GROCERIES PAID BY CITY

And Dealer's Books Burned at His Orders—Criminal Action Suggested in a Report to the Mayor.

Michael J. Rickard, the Assistant Superintendent of Bellevue Hospital, who was suspended from duty pending trial on charges by the Board of Trustees of Bellevue and Allied Hospitals on July 27, was made the chief subject of the preliminary report of Commissioners of Accounts John Purroy Mitchel and Henry Buncke to Mayor McClellan in relation to the purchase of supplies by Bellevue and other hospitals. The report was made public yesterday.

It covers in great detail the ground gone over by the Board of Trustees in their investigations on and prior to July 27. They found that all sorts of fine groceries and delicacies had been purchased, many of them for Mr. Rickard's Summer home at City Island, and many of them bought by Mrs. Rickard, and had been charged for under the heading of "fresh fruits and vegetables," which the hospital is allowed to buy in open market. Then the vouchers and books had been changed to suit the rules, says the report, and the bills were O. K.'d by the unsuspecting trustees.

At their regular meeting on July 27 the Trustees dismissed Frank Eckstein, the Bellevue auditor; reprimanded George A. White, a clerical helper of his, and suspended Mr. Rickard pending trial on charges. The charges were formulated the following day by the Finance Committee. The Trustees that day waited for the resignation of Mr. Rickard, which they had heard was on its way, but it did not come. Mr. Rickard, they heard, had changed his mind.

Rickard to Fight Dismissal.

When the time came for the next regular meeting of the Trustees there was no quorum, and the remaining members did not want to undertake so serious a matter as a trial without a full quorum. There has not been a quorum since, and so Mr. Rickard remains in the same relation to the hospital that he was on July 27. He was relieved from all duties in the institution and has spent most of his time since at his Summer home on City Island. The Board of Trustees will have their next regular meeting on Sept. 14, when a quorum is expected. Mr. Rickard, it is now believed, will fight against dismissal.

The preliminary report of the Commissioners of Accounts give some few details which were not given out by the Board of Trustees. The name of the grocer who sent fine groceries and delicacies to Mr. Rickard's home and then at his suggestion burned his account book in July is G. A. Schmidt. This is told in Mr. Rickard's confession. The report says that the Assistant Superintendent wanted to make a confession at that time. Some of the substitutions on Schmidt's book, according to the reported confession, were suggested by Mrs. Rickard, who at one time was a nurse at Bellevue.

Mayor McClellan received this preliminary report last week, but neither made it public nor took any action on it before leaving the city. He is expected to return to-day. The most important part of the report is the following:

Making False Claims a Felony.

"Upon the question of the gravity of the offense disclosed and lying in the act and conduct of Michael J. Rickard in falsifying and procuring the falsification of claims presented to the Board of Trustees for allowance and to the Controller for payment, your Honor's attention is particularly directed to Section 1,872 of the Penal law (Penal Code, Section 672,) which reads as follows:

> Fraudulently presenting bills or claims to public officers for payment. A persons who, knowingly, with intent to defraud, presents for audit or allowance or for payment to any officer or board of officers of the State or of any county, town, city, or village authorized to audit or to allow or to pay bills, claims, or charges any false or fraudulent claim, bill, account, or demand containing false or fraudulent charges, items, or claims is guilty of felony.

"We have already shown that the claims to which this report is addressed were not only false and fraudulent, but in their nature illegal. The testimony of Michael J. Rickard establishes the fact that he knew the claims to be false, and that he knowingly presented them for payment.

"Pursuant to your instructions, we submit copies of this report to the Trustees of Bellevue and Allied Hospitals for proper action in the premises."

Commissioner of Charities Hebberd, who is an ex-officio member of the Board of Trustees of Bellevue and Allied Hospitals, said last night that he did not know who ought to prosecute the criminal side of the charges, if any are prosecuted, but he thought that either the Trustees or the Commissioners of Accounts would be authorized to do so.

No Money Profit to Him.

The Commissioners of Accounts point out, as did the Board of Trustees, that no money was gained by the fraudulent changing of the books and vouchers. Mr. Rickard lived at Bellevue with his wife and adopted son except when he was spending his vacation at City Island. His salary was $3,500, and he was entitled to maintenance. The Trustees are not even sure that he committed an offense in having supplies sent to his Summer home, though it is called unethical. Most likely, too, he could have had finer supplies than he had been having if he had asked for them in the proper way, they said.

But there was only a certain allowance made each month for fresh fruits and vegetables, and whenever a part of this was diverted to other supplies it meant that so much less of these went to the patients. And outside of that, the Commissioners point out that changing books and vouchers is distinctly against the law. In almost all cases the changes were not made on the books of the dealers. The original bills they sent in were put in a pigeon hole, typewritten copies, duly doctored, being used in their place through the rest of the bookkeeping machinery.

The Commissioners assert that the frauds discovered were closely allied to a system of substituting one class of goods for another in the bills of supplies furnished under annual contract. This system is said to have prevailed in the department for several years. With the exception of fresh fruits and vegetables and a few other classes of supplies, the department purchases all of its supplies under annual contracts awarded after competition in accordance with the provisions of the city charter.

It appears that dealers having contracts for turkey have delivered duck and substituted bills for such quantities of turkey as would equal the price of the duck actually delivered. Those dealers having contracts for roast duck have delivered filet of beef and substituted bills for roast beef in such quantity as to equal the price of beef delivered.

EASIER ON WAITRESSES NOW.

The Servemobile Keeps the Food Hot and Carries It to the Guests.

Abraham & Straus, at their store in Fulton Street, Brooklyn, had on exhibition yesterday a servemobile, which is part of the equipment of their new restaurant.

This device is an electric heater mounted upon rollers. It is moved from one table to another, and guests are served directly from it.

The new restaurant is located in the southwest corner of the fifth floor, and has a seating capacity of about 500. The color scheme is cream, gold, and red.

There is also to be a grill room in connection with the restaurant.

STORM PRACTICE FOR FLEET.

Battle Evolutions Being Carried on While a High Wind Blows.

NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 30.—With a northeast wind velocity of twenty-four miles an hour kicking up a high sea, the Atlantic battleship and cruiser fleet to-day had the roughest weather yet during their target practice work and mimic war evolutions on the southern drill grounds off the Virginia Capes. The flagship Connecticut and five other ships of the fleet, which came into Hampton Roads late Saturday, put to sea this morning for resumption of battle practice work under the severe conditions for which the fleet had been waiting for more than a week.

The battle target boat O'Brien having been towed in and back to the Navy Yard by the tug Hercules, Admiral Schroeder sent a wireless call for the dismantled target boat Nicholson, but owing to the lack of sufficient cork to fill her compartments, she has not left the yard. A hurry order has been sent to Owensboro, Ky., for an additional supply of cork, but pending the arrival of this enough to fill the Nicholson will be removed from the O'Brien and the former hurried out to the fleet.

The O'Brien has a number of holes in her, and she is to receive new mast pieces in place of those carried away while the target was at sea. It appears that considerable trouble was experienced in keeping the masts in place. Extra precaution is being taken in staying the mast pieces on the Nicholson before she is sent out. These masts are used for the stretching aloft of canvas for target aim from the battleships and cruisers.

The after-dark target work of the vessels of the fleet is one of the most interesting features of the present evolutions and manoeuvres on the drill grounds. Each projectile, as it is sent from the gun at night, carries with it a burning fuse resembling much the tail of a comet. This tells the course of the shell, which, frequently ricochetting through the water, would otherwise be lost when it failed to strike the lighted target.

COURT DENOUNCES DEPUTIES.

Magistrate Krotel Says Theatre Arrests Were Illegal—One Man Beaten.

Second Deputy Sheriffs Taylor and Samuels are employed in the Dewey Theatre in East Fourteenth Street to preserve order, and as tokens of their zeal have had prisoners in the Night Court regularly for several nights. They appeared again last night with two prisoners. Magistrate Krotel thereupon accused them of exceeding their authority.

There was a wrestling match on at the Dewey last night, sandwiched between the regular moving picture turns. The referee announced that strangle holds would not be permitted. One of the wrestlers in the enthusiasm of the moment got a strangle hold on his opponent. Men in the audience shouted their disapproval.

The special deputies asserted that Joseph Meyer of 137 West 110th Street stood up in his seat and refused to sit down when ordered. Max Lipschitz of 245 East Thirteenth Street, the other prisoner, they said, interfered when they arrested Meyer.

Meyer's face was cut and one eye blackened. He showed the Magistrate cuts on his wrists from handcuffs that had been placed on him. He denied the charges, and said that he had become interested in the wrestling and had got to his feet, but sat down immediately.

"I believe this man's story," said Magistrate Krotel. "I think charges ought to be preferred against these two Deputy Sheriffs. You have no authority to handcuff men. You have no right to hammer up prisoners as you did this man. I don't believe a word either of you two deputies has to say."

Lipschitz said he was leaving his seat to go out of the theatre when he was arrested, and made no disturbance because he couldn't understand English. Magistrate Krotel glared at the deputies and discharged the prisoners.

ROWDIES HURT TWO IN RIOT.

Police Reserves of Two Williamsburg Stations Called Out to Quell It.

Police reserves from two Williamsburg stations were called out early yesterday morning to suppress a riot started by a score of rowdies at Grand and Olive Streets, Williamsburg, when they bombarded with bricks and other missiles the New York Volunteer Life Saving Corps of Manhattan, who were returning from a Queens County resort in a tally-ho coach drawn by ten horses.

There were about 100 in the party, and the rowdies assailed them from all sides. After bricks had struck half a dozen of the party, the driver halted the horses and the excursionists jumped out of the stage, some armed with baseball bats, others with empty bottles.

The two crowds were in a fierce encounter when Policemen Quigley and Sperling called out the reserves. Before they reached the scene, however, the majority of the rowdies had fled.

Two of the Life Saving Corps, Frank Deegan of 728 East Twelfth Street and Harry Abrams of 72 Market Street, Manhattan, were so badly injured that they had to be attended by an ambulance surgeon from St. Catharine's Hospital.

The police arrested John White of 348 Devoe Street, Martin Frank of 309 Devoe Street, and Frederick Waldemeyer of 236 Graham Avenue, as the ringleaders of the rowdies. They were held in $300 bail in court.

GEORGE P. EUSTIS BETTER.

Said to be Recovering from Smallpox Developed on Liner.

George Peabody Eustis, who developed smallpox on board the Cunard liner Carpathia and was placed in the Willard Parker Hospital on landing from the steamer last Tuesday, is convalescing rapidly, it was said, at the hospital yesterday. Mr. Eustis is a brother of Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, Jr.

It is believed he contracted the disease at Gibraltar, but it did not develop until the Carpathia was several days out. Mr. Eustis and his wife were isolated immediately from the other passengers, and Mrs. Eustis did not develop the disease.

Mrs. Eustis is at the home of her father, William A. Street, 43 Park Avenue.

STERN LAW UPSETS A MOCK COURT

GOES HARD WITH ROWDIES

All Those Arrested on Sunday for Disorderly Conduct on Trains Fined or Sent to Jail.

The rear and straggling guard of the Yemassie Haymakers, an organization of the upper west side, said to be workers for "The" McManus, was returning early yesterday morning from a Sunday outing to College Point. One of the last remnants of the Haymakers to come home started for Manhattan by the Thirty-fourth Street Ferry, all full of innocent merriment, clam chowder, and other things, at about 1:30 A. M.

As soon as the boat began to move out of the ferry slip Charles Ammon of 567 Tenth Avenue set himself up as a mock magistrate, and some of his fellow-Haymakers went out to get prisoners. They didn't know that Sergt. Irwin and six other policemen, all in plain clothes, were on the boat.

The first "prisoner" brought before "Magistrate" Ammon was a frightened negro, who was ordered to stand on his head. This he could only attempt. He was then ordered to drink five glasses of water, but this made him sick, and finally he was discharged.

Irwin asked his men to start a mock fight. Policeman Fritsch was arrested and taken before "Magistrate" Ammon. He was ordered to turn a handspring. Instead he knocked a couple of Haymaking "police" over. Sergt. Irwin then told his men to overturn the "Magistrate," which was done. He and all his "officers" were made suddenly serious by arrest. Even the sick negro laughed.

"Magistrate" Ammon shed real tears yesterday before Magistrate Cornell in the Yorkville Court, who not only fined him $10, but also gave him a real, old-fashioned Cornell lecture, which was worse. Four men were sent to the Workhouse, and several more were fined anywhere from $5 to $10.

Ten Subway rowdies under 16 years of age were arraigned yesterday in the Children's Court. They had all been arrested on Broadway trains on Sunday. Two were fined $5 each, one $1, and the other seven got sentences in various institutions varying from five days to an indefinite period.

The Brooklyn police had before the Magistrates yesterday sixty-eight car rowdies they had arrested on Sunday.

In the Gates Avenue Court eleven car rowdies who caused trouble and disorder by jumping through car windows or throwing pepper in crowds faced Magistrate Furlong. He imposed fines ranging from $2 to $10, and in most cases the offenders couldn't pay and went to jail.

The Magistrate was aroused when the pepper throwers came before him. They were John P. Kruger of Hinsdale Avenue and New Lots Road, Albert Schmidt of 2,461 Pitkin Avenue, and Edward Prichard of 555 Warwick Street. They were arrested on a Fulton Street train early yesterday morning after throwing pepper before the draft coming from the open front door.

"I have a good mind to send you to the penitentiary," declared the Magistrate, as he fined each of the prisoners $10.

In the Fifth Avenue Court Magistrate Geismar was in the act of sending Frederick J. Reilly of 800 Bay Thirty-third Street to Blackwell's Island for six months. The prisoner was arrested on the Fifth Avenue elevated line for acting in a boisterous and a disorderly manner.

Detective Charles J. Murray, who arrested him, said that when he got off the train at the Ninth Street station the prisoner deliberately walked up to where a passenger was sitting at an open car window and struck him.

"Six months in the Blackwell's Island workhouse," thundered the Magistrate after the prisoner had pleaded guilty. But the Magistrate changed this sentence to a fine of $5 after he learned that it was the culprit's first offense. A friend interceded for Reilly and paid his fine.

Magistrate O'Reilly had twenty-nine Sunday car rowdies before him yesterday in the Manhattan Avenue Court, Williamsburg. Most of them had acted in a disorderly manner on elevated trains and cars of the Grand Street line returning from North Beach. In several instances the police were obliged to use their clubs.

The Magistrate made it known from the outset that he had no use for rowdies. Twenty-five of the prisoners were fined from $1 to $10 each, three were each held in $300 bail, and the last, a 16-year-old boy, Edward Brady, of 75 Marcy Avenue, was sent to the Workhouse for six months.

TAXICAB PAINTERS STRIKE.

Say Wages Are Cut and They Are Subjected to Searches by Company.

Eighteen painters were reported yesterday to be on strike in the shops of the New York Taxicab Company, and the strikers say they will remain out until certain rules are changed. They said yesterday that their wages were cut, but the main grievance, they aver, is that they are required to make an agreement by which they can be searched personally or their homes searched if any articles are missing.

Fighting Italians Fined $10 Each.

Nine Italians who were arrested after a fight at 108th Street last night were fined $10 each by Magistrate House in the Harlem Court yesterday. Two shots were fired from a pistol in the hands of a man who escaped, the police say, and the racket attracted Detectives Dondero, Cassidy, Digilio, and Caputo of the Italian Detective Bureau, who arrested the fighters.

SMUGGLE FOR THE FUN OF IT.

Loeb Believes Many Persons Conceal Goods They Might Bring In.

Collector Loeb, who made a personal inspection of the work of his customs men on the four steamers which arrived Sunday, said yesterday that many passengers arriving at this port are causing themselves and the Customs Service unnecessary trouble by failing to make proper declarations of their personal effects. He is imposing a system of fines upon passengers who bring in goods not on their declarations, which under the customs regulations would come in free of duty if shown on the declarations.

A score of passengers went to the Custom House yesterday and paid duty on property which they had failed to mention in making out declarations, but which they could have brought in free had they not attempted to conceal the property from the customs Inspectors. The Collector said he disliked to arrest a man or woman for such petty smuggling, so he had issued an order compelling them to pay full duty as a penalty on articles to the value of $100, which is the amount that may come in free with every passenger when properly declared.

The Collector said he did not believe this practice was due to passengers' ignorance of their rights, but was due to the delight some people take in trying to "beat" the Government.

1910 TROW DIRECTORY READY.

Trow's Directory of Manhattan and the Bronx for 1910 will be on sale to-morrow. It covers the year ended Aug. 1, and contains 503,769 names, an increase of 41,292 over last year. In spite of the increase in names the directory has only eighteen more printed pages; because of a change in type and a condensation of matter twenty-two more names are put on each page this year than last year. Two hundred men worked eighty-five days canvassing for and compiling the 1910 directory.

The canvass showed that there has been a decrease in the number of people in the lower east side in the last year. This has been caused by the demolition of a number of tenement buildings for bridge extensions and factories, and also through removals to the Eastern District section of Brooklyn. The greatest increase in names was found in the Washington Heights and Bronx sections.

It is stated that the canvassers found the big business buildings of the city fully tenanted. The Hudson Terminal, Singer, City Investing, and Metropolitan Life Buildings furnished 6,000 names.

SWEEP CAPTURES $30,000 FUTURITY

the most open Futurity in the twenty-two years of the big event's history.

Sweep Breaks Quickly.

Sweep, in the far outside position, with only Lothario beyond him, broke quickest and went on with a rush, crossing over to the inner rail so quickly that he was on the rail almost as soon as the race was begun, while Barleythorpe, second away and running straight on when the barrier rose, succeeded Sweep in front; Grasmere, third away, taking second place, with Sweep then third, and the others trailing back in straggling order, Candleberry, slow to begin and outrun in the first strides, being next to last as the horses reached the first furlong pole.

Grasmere moved past Barleythorpe at the first quarter pole, and with the positions of the others in the lead, Barleythorpe second and Sweep third, all about abreast, there was no change in the positions until they came to the bend in the course, though the field strung out further and further back. On the bend Sweep, running freely, seemed to pay no heed to the rail as a guide, but went straight on, and had crossed almost half way over the track before Butwell swung him over to follow the rail, Sweep at this point drawing out before Barleythorpe and Grasmere and taking the lead. Grasmere swerved slightly at the same time, but there was no jostle, while Barleythorpe, running straight to that point, had hardly more than reached the stretch than he began to swerve and bear out. Sweep left his field there, and, going away to the end, won easily by six lengths. Until well in the stretch, Candleberry never appeared as a contender, but in the run to the bend he had moved up to near the middle of the field, and through all the run down the straight he ran through the crowd and just inside the last furlong, where Barleythorpe tired and fell back, Candleberry showed in third place, and went on after the leaders. He never was dangerous to Sweep, which had the race practically won, but he overhauled Grasmere relentlessly, and inside the last furlong drove the Keene second hope to the whip, Grasmere and Candleberry fighting it out to the last jump for the place, with Candleberry second in the final strides, a neck before Grasmere; Angerone, which also closed some ground at the finish, a length and a half further back, fourth.

Record of Futurity Winner.

Sweep is a rather plain but substantial brown colt by Ben Brush-Pink Domino, by Domino, and the race yesterday was the fifth that he has won in eight starts, having been beaten once in a stake at Sheepshead Bay by Dalmatian and twice at Saratoga—once by Waldo and once by Rocky O'Brien. Sweep's only poor race was the one at Sheepshead Bay, when Mr. Keene insisted on running him, and he was put in as an added starter for the Great Trial Stakes against the advice of James Rowe, his trainer, and finished third. At Saratoga, practically left at the post, he was second to Waldo, and in another race carried 130 pounds and finished second to Rocky O'Brien in the Hopeful Stakes.

Sweep is hardly a great horse, but he is singularly courageous and honest, and he has made an important contribution of $40,000 to the winnings of James R. Keene's stable this season. Mr. Keene said of Sweep's race in the Futurity yesterday that it was the best that ever has been run for the stakes, in his opinion. Trainer Rowe hurried his colts Sweep and Grasmere back to the stable to cool out, and there were no Keene colts for the crowd to admire when the stable partisans flocked to the paddock seeking the winner and third horse.

Fall Handicap for Besom.

In the Fall Handicap, six and a half furlongs, for all ages, the Keene cast-off, Besom, won a singularly good race in a sharply fought finish with De Mund and the gallant old champion sprinter Jack Atkin. Jack Atkin, with 140 pounds, Rose Queen, 109, and Arondack, 105, were added starters in a race that brought out eight runners, Jack Atkin, weight and all, starting favorite. The great old weight carrier broke in front, but let Rose Queen take the lead in the first few strides, and, running up in his field, was jostled near the first turn. He recovered and went on after the pace, and was wearing down the leaders fast at the end. Rose Queen quit and fell back suddenly in the last furlong, and Besom, second to that point, took command and won ridden out by a length and a half, while De Mund and Jack Atkin fought out, a neck apart, second and third in a race that was within two-fifths of a second of the track record.

In the mile and a sixteenth on the turf course Etherial set a new time mark of 1:45 2-5, and won ridden out by a half length after Question Mark and Nimbus alternated in the lead most of the distance, Nimbus lasting in front to fight it out with Etherial at the end. Uncas Chief caught Billiard Ball in the last jump for the closing race, and beat him a head on the post. In the earlier races Prince Gal, as an odds-on favorite, and Eye Bright as one of two equal choices each won from end to end, romping out in front all the way. Summaries:

ORAL BETS AT SHEEPSHEAD.

Wagers in Plenty, to Fit Court Decisions, at Opening of Autumn Races.

The only change in the conditions governing betting, racegoers under the State law prohibiting bookmaking and restricting betting, at Sheepshead Bay yesterday, when turf sport was resumed for the Fall season, was in the increased patronage at the Coney Island Jockey Club's race course.

The law, as defined by the higher courts, was enforced exactly as in the Spring, and the speculation was entirely in agreement with the Supreme Court decision that "oral bets" are not in violation of the law prohibiting bookmaking and pool selling.

A big squad of uniformed policemen, under Inspector O'Brien, and a force of Headquarters detectives policed the race course grounds, but had little to do, as the race track police, keyed to the highest pitch of vigilance by the greatest crowd of the racing season, kept watch to prevent anything that might be construed as bookmaking under the law.

As far as their reports showed, or as was apparent, the exchange of money in cash bets was not permitted, and there was none of the paraphernalia of bookmaking in use. There was "oral" betting in plenty for racegoers, however. The betting men congregated in the open shed formerly used as the betting ring.

The THEORY of BUSINESS WASTE

—that the most costly waste in the routine of a business house, the most troublesome friction, inexactness, weaknesses, are not due to obscure and elusive causes, but that they fall under certain broad, simple heads, where they can be readily got hold of and corrected.

—and that in correcting these definite defects lies the most accessible source of increased profit for most business houses.

AUTO PULLS ENGINE TO FIRE.

Dudley Winthrop Barn at Westbury and Some Stock Burned.

Special to The New York Times.

WESTBURY, L. I., Aug. 30.—Despite the efforts of D. F. Maltby, the volunteer service of his automobile, and the Westbury Fire Department to save the farm buildings on the place of Dudley Winthrop here late last night the barn, chicken house, prize chickens, and two valuable farm houses were practically destroyed by fire.

Maltby owns a string of three garages at Jericho, Mineola, and Westbury. When he heard the alarm with a small but very high-powered car he started straight for the firehouse, where the men were already pulling out the engine. Hitched to the red car, with nineteen men on the fire truck and eight in the auto, the party made for the Winthrop place, but they could do little. The loss was about $8,000.

NO TAMMANY TAINT ON HUNDRED'S SLATE

Committee on Candidates Says Any One with Tiger Affiliations Will Not Be Indorsed.

SAY FUSION CHANCES GOOD

Chairman Outerbridge Declines to Discuss Judge Gaynor's Position—The Democratic Union and Haffen.

After a meeting by the Committee on Candidates of the Committee of One Hundred, held last night at the headquarters of that organization in the Fifth Avenue Building, Chairman Eugene H. Outerbridge authorized a statement which makes it clear that no aspirants for places on the city ticket with Tammany affiliations will have the slightest chance of receiving the committee's indorsement.

"In the consideration of the names of various candidates by the committee there has been made clearly manifest a sentiment among the members which will prevent any man from receiving its endorsement for the position of Mayor or any other place on the city ticket who will not conduct a campaign opposed to everything Tammany Hall stands for," said Mr. Outerbridge.

"How will that affect the prospect of Justice Gaynor of Brooklyn receiving the endorsement of your organization?" Mr. Outerbridge was asked.

"The members of the committee have agreed not to make any statement for publication in reference to specific candidates. I think my statement covers everything regarding which it would be desirable to make any announcement at present," was the reply.

Mr. Outerbridge declared erroneous a report which has appeared in some evening papers to the effect that the discussion in the Committee on Candidates had practically narrowed down to four names. In reply to a question he said that in the nature of things it would be necessary to have a conference of such anti-Tammany organizations as would join a general fusion movement within the next few days. Mr. Outerbridge declined to be narrowed down to any prospective date on which the call for a fusion conference may possibly be sent out. It was stated on behalf of the committee that the prospects for a general anti-Tammany fusion movement seemed good.

It is likely that some provision will be made by the Executive Committee of the Republican City Committee, when that body meets this afternoon, to reciprocate the action taken by the Committee of One Hundred in appointing its Committee on Candidates by appointing a conference committee to meet with committees from other anti-Tammany organizations for the purpose of discussing candidates and issues.

The Democratic Union, another of the anti-Tammany organizations that expects to participate in the fusion conferences, met at the Gilsey House last night to prepare for a fight on the Tammany candidate to be selected for the place left vacant by the removal of Borough President Haffen by the eight Aldermen from the Bronx. In this the Democratic Union will seek to enlist the other forces in that borough which are preparing to oppose Tammany Hall in the coming election. William J. O'Gorman, a former Coroner in the Borough of the Bronx, was said last night to be the candidate of the Democratic Union for Borough President. It was not explained how his name could possibly be brought before the meeting of the Bronx Aldermen as a nominee for Mr. Haffen's former place, the union having no representative on the board.

The Non-partisan Voters' League, an organization of recent growth, met last night at the Hotel Imperial to prepare for a meeting, which is scheduled there for this evening, and at which a permanent organization will be effected. Peter Quinn, a business man, is temporary Chairman, and John D. Gluck temporary Secretary of the Non-partisan Voters' League. Mr. Gluck said last night that the league had no candidate for any office; that a Committee of Thirty would be appointed to consider names of candidates, and that among the 12,000 members of the league there was a strong undercurrent of sentiment for Robert C. Morris, President of the Republican Club, for Mayor.

EARTHQUAKE AT PANAMA.

Col. Goethals Reports That No Harm Was Done to Canal Works.

PANAMA, Aug. 30.—The Isthmus of Panama experienced an earthshock this morning, extending over a large extent of territory. No damage was done, however, nor is it believed that the canal has been affected in any way. Lieut. Col. G. W. Goethals gave out the following statement this evening:

"The seismographs on the Isthmus at 8 o'clock this morning recorded earth movements at various stations across the Isthmus. However, they were not sufficiently severe to be generally felt, nor to have any injurious effects on any of the canal work now in execution or in prospect."

The shock was very noticeable here, and the people of the city, unaccustomed to such visitations, were greatly alarmed. The administration buildings of both the Government and the Canal Commission here and at Ancon were so severely shaken that the clerks left their desks hurriedly for the street. They soon returned, however, when it was seen that no damage had been done and that the first shock was not followed by a second.

The quake was felt also at Aguadulce, in Cocle Province, and at Pacora, in the Province of Panama, points more than 100 miles apart. In Colon the shock was slight and no damage was done.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—The seismograph at the United States Weather Bureau here recorded slight but distinct earthshocks between 8 and 9 o'clock this morning. They were of short duration, and the officials considered them to be of little consequence.

SUSPECT MURDER AND SUICIDE

Schock Found Drowned in Reservoir—Girl He Took Away Still Missing.

After a general alarm had been sent from Police Headquarters yesterday morning for Charles Schock, 30 years old, and Dora W. Hookey, 19 years old, who left the girl's mother's home, 454 East 183d Street, last Wednesday night together, the body of the man was found yesterday noon in the Jerome Park Reservoir, near Claflin Terrace.

The police began dragging the reservoir in the belief that the body of the girl would also be found there, but it had not been discovered up to a late hour last night.

Schock was employed as a driver by the Puritan Laundry at 2,441 Third Avenue, where the girl was an ironer. Schock had boarded with Mrs. Hookey for two or three years, there being only the three in the flat. Their friends said he and the girl were in love with one another, and expected to marry.

Last Wednesday they left the house, telling Mrs. Hookey they were going for a walk. As they did not return that night Mrs. Hookey reported their disappearance to the Tremont Station police. She said she thought they had eloped. Yesterday the matter was reported at Police Headquarters.

On the body of Schock was found $11.50 and two return tickets from Stamford to Yonkers. His mother lives in Stamford.

The police of the Trement Avenue Station had received complaints about Schock from parents who said he had taken their children out riding in his laundry wagon.

The police suspect that if the girl's body is found it will show marks of violence, indicating that there was a murder and then a suicide.

CLAN 7,000 STRONG AT SULLIVAN OUTING

"BIG TIM" MAKES A BLUFF

Tries to Make a Pair of Treys Win a Big Poker Pot—Beer for the Asking—Some Athletic Sports.

"Big Tim" Sullivan, chief of the Tammany strongholds south of Fourteenth Street, led about 7,000 of his followers to College Point for the annual outing of the Sullivans yesterday, and, according to "Big Tim" and his lieutenants, it proved to be one of the biggest and most successful occasions of the kind the Bowery leader has ever engineered.

"Big Tim's" cohorts began assembling at the Timothy D. Sullivan Association Hall, 207 Bowery, at 8 o'clock yesterday morning. For three hours there was not a break in the ranks of the arriving columns. At 10 o'clock the police estimated that from 3,000 to 4,000 were waiting the word to march. About 2,000 others who wanted good seats on the excursion steamers Grand Republic and Pegasus had gathered at the recreation pier at the foot of East Third Street, to be sure of getting choice locations on the boats. It proved to be a wise move.

All the Faithful in Line.

A few minutes after 10 o'clock Larry Mulligan, the Grand Marshal of yesterday's show, signaled the band that the parade was ready to start, and a moment later, to the strains of a more or less popular song about somebody's wife taking a vacation, the column began to move.

Right behind the big and little Tims came a host of others whose names are known wherever a Tammany camp is pitched. There was big Eugene McGuire, who spent a month not long ago at Muldoon's trying to get his weight below the 300 pound mark, and at his right trotted Coroner Julius Harburger, who says he wishes he had about 100 pounds of the surplus big "Gene" is so anxious to lose. The "peepul's" Congressman, William Sulzer, was in line, as were also Congressman "Danny" Riordan, Magistrate "Battery Dan" Finn, "Tom" Sharkey, "Johnnie" White, "The" McManus, "Bob" Davis, the Hudson County, N. J., politician; "Louie" Cuvillier, the Assemblyman who holds the record for introducing bills; Percy Nagle, "Joe" Prendergast, "Joe" Humphreys, Coroner Acritelli, Congressman Goldfogle, Judges Hoyer, Sanders, and Herrmann; "Christy" Sullivan, and last but not least, Col. "Mike" Padden, the Bowery's military idol.

Sergt. John W. O'Keefe of the mounted police with six picked men of his squad had been sent to the pier for any emergency, and they found it right away. So great was the rush to get on the boats that the few policemen on guard were swept off of their feet by the crowd that was trying to force its way in a single flying wedge through a gangway just big enough for two to pass through with comfort.

O'Keefe was on the alert for just such a contingency, and quickly the mounted men galloped down the pier and pushed through to the front of the crowd. In five minutes order was restored, after which the mounted men formed a line through which the embarkation was made without further trouble.

Gambling Games Galore.

Once the boats had started from all corners of them professional gamblers made their presence known. Wheel games, the game of three sevens painted on a white sheet, that known as "under and over," crap, and poker games were in full blast before either craft was abreast of Tenth Street. The play went on on camp stools, on top of hatches, on the floor, and even on the plush covered seats in the main saloons.

When the landing at College Point had been made the celebraters hurried to the outing park, about half a mile distant. There the tables were spread ready to accommodate the hungry, and "Big Tim" saw to it that there was plenty of everything from clam chowder to beer. The crowd ate in relays, and the dinner, which began at 2 P. M., was still being served in the crowded dining rooms four hours later.

On the athletic field and in the grove everything was quickly in motion. There were a number of field events with cash prizes for the winners, and two baseball games, and a game of chance for every keg of beer.

These kegs of beer were placed on stands in all parts of the field and grove and everybody could have all the beer they wanted for the asking, and there were thirsty thousands who never seemed to get enough. The gamblers quickly found this out, and soon there was a little game waiting for patronage near every beer keg. On the athletic field there were more than a dozen games of chance going on all the afternoon, and more than that number were in operation in the grove.

But the biggest game of all was a quiet little session at poker played in one of the suites of the Grand Republic. The ante was $5, with the same sum to "sweeten." After the pot was opened the sky was the limit. Some of those who played in this game, which was a private and friendly affair, were "Big Tim" Sullivan himself, Sheriff Foley, Frank Farrell, "Bob" Davis of Hudson County, N. J.; Mike Mulqueen, and Col. Mike Padden.

In one pot the ante and the "sweeteners" had piled up into a total of hundreds of dollars. Col. Padden had a four flush and a pair of aces, and opened the pot for $25. Big Tim raised him $25, and one of the other players, who had overlooked one of three fives, just stayed along. Col. Padden split his aces and drew one card to a flush. Big Tim, who had raised on a pair of threes, drew three cards, including a pair of eights. The man with the fives drew one card.

"I breathe," said Big Tim, eyeing Col. Mike.

"Me, too," said the man with three fives.

"I have a 'busted' flush," said Col. Mike gadly.

"I've eights on threes," said Big Tim.

"And I've three fives and the pot," said the third, raking in several hundred dollars.

It was said unofficially that several times during the course of the day notable pots in the Grand Republic game totaled several thousand dollars apiece, and that several players won small fortunes.

NOT SERIOUSLY ILL, HARRIMAN EXPLAINS

Issues a Statement Saying That Surgical Examination Showed He Needed Only Rest.

WAS ADVISED IN EUROPE

Presence of Surgeons Not an Emergency Measure—Stocks Rise Again, Following Reassuring News.

Special to The New York Times.

ARDEN, N. Y., Aug. 30.—E. H. Harriman, in a frank statement issued to-day from his home on the summit of the Ramapo Mountains, set at rest rumors that had been spread since his return to the Arden House that he was in a dangerous condition of health and was about to undergo a serious operation. He explained the presence at his home of Dr. George W. Crile, the Cleveland specialist; Dr. Walter James, Dr. Brewer, the specialist associated with Bellevue Hospital, and his personal physician, Dr. William Gordon Lyle. He said that a surgical examination had been advised by the specialists whom he consulted abroad, and they made it and found that his condition was not serious.

"Round Robin" from Reporters.

Mr. Harriman's statement was the direct result of a "round robin" sent to him by special delivery from Turner this morning by correspondents of New York newspapers, who had been sent up to learn his condition. It read as follows:

To Mr. E. H. Harriman, Arden House, Arden, N. Y.

Dear Sir: Owing to the sensational stories sent out from irresponsible sources, the representatives of the New York morning papers ask that you issue an authoritative statement in respect to your physical condition. Nothing but that will refute the alarmist reports. We inclose with this an article published to-day. Another report has it that an operation was performed on you on Friday and that to-day is the first day you have been out since Friday.

The inclosed newspaper article mentioned referred to the supposedly dangerous condition of Mr. Harriman. The "round robin" was mailed at Arden at 10:30 o'clock. In a separate note T. C. Ford, Superintendent of the Harriman grounds, was informed that the newspaper men would, at 4 o'clock, have a messenger at the foot of the funicular railway, which runs from Arden to the top of the mountain, to receive Mr. Harriman's answer.

The messenger was there promptly at the hour, and Mr. Ford descended from the summit of the incline in a small car. He handed the newspaper man a note written on white letter paper and said it had been written by Miss Mary Harriman at her father's dictation. Across the top of the note was this brief salutation written by Mr. Harriman:

Gentlemen: Thanks for your letter of to-day. The statement below was made by me over telephone to-day and published. You see it covers the whole subject. Believe me, yours truly.

Aug. 30, 1909. E. H. HARRIMAN.

Harriman Tells His Condition.

The statement dictated by Mr. Harriman follows:

I am pursuing the course laid out before I went abroad and advised by the physicians. I intended taking a rest as soon as my responsibilities would permit. My treatment abroad reduced my strength and vitality and weakened my digestion.

The most expert physicians in Munich advised me to have an examination by surgeons as a precaution. This has been done very carefully by Drs. Brewer and Crile in conjunction with Dr. Walter James and Dr. Lyle, and the whole result is that they found nothing serious and renew the advice previously obtained that I should have rest and not see many people at one time, and this I am trying to do.

This covers the situation, and later on, if the representatives of the press desire and there is any purpose to be accomplished, I will see them up here, but now I ask that the surveillance of the operations of my home be withdrawn, not so much on account of my family or myself, but that the coming and going of my friends may not be interfered with.

I appreciate the interest shown in my welfare by the press and my friends in all sections, and possibly by some others. If there was or should be anything serious I will let the press know, and as I have never deceived them, I ask that the press now withdraw its representatives and rely on me.

Newspaper Men Withdrawn.

After receiving Mr. Harriman's note, the newspaper men telegraphed their offices and received immediate instructions to return to the city. Before leaving they sent this telegram to Mr. Harriman:

In reply to your letter we beg to inform you that all the representatives of the newspapers, both morning and evening, will return to New York this evening. We thank you for your courtesy, and heartily congratulate you on your improvement, hoping it will continue, and that in the near future we shall have the pleasure of seeing you back at your desk in New York.

Not only did the newspaper reporters leave, but the small army of telegraph operators who for a week have made Arden a village of unwonted activity went, too. The village settled down to the old time calm after they left. It was said here to-night that Dr. Crile left Arden last Friday immediately after having seen Mr. Harriman. The only physician now at Arden House is Dr. Lyle.

HARRIMAN STOCKS GO UP.

Market Recovery Attributed to Favorable Reports of Mr. Harriman.

The favorable reports from Arden over Sunday, which went far toward clinching the growing belief in Wall Street that last week's alarmist reports of Mr. Harriman's condition were unfounded, was the accepted explanation in brokerage circles yesterday of the sharp rise in stocks. Prices were substantially higher in London before the market opened, and when the gong sounded, at 10 o'clock, there was a rush of buying orders, which centred in the Harriman issues.

Union Pacific opened with 12,000 shares reported on the ticker at 200 to 200⅞, comparing with Saturday's close at 197⅜. Southern Pacific's first appearance on the ticker was a 5,000-share block reported at 128¾-129¼, a gain of 2⅞ over Saturday.

Steel common, sharing the advance, sold 6,000 shares at a rise of 1⅝. Other active issues were correspondingly strong, Reading gaining 3 points, New York Central 2¾, American Smelting 2⅝, and Northern Pacific 2½. The nervous short covering, which influenced the opening, abated after the first few minutes, and there was a reaction of from 1 to 2 points as the market quieted down.

Before 11 o'clock there was another upward movement, which put prices again near the top. Union Pacific led in the gains, reaching 202⅝ at its highest, which was a gain of 5⅛ over Saturday's close. The market closed strong, though less active.

WOMEN COLD TO MRS. STONE.

Coal Operator's Wife Absent Many Months—Husband Asks Forgetfulness.

Special to The New York Times.

UNIONTOWN, Penn., Aug. 30.—Mrs. W. A. Stone, wife of the wealthy coal operator, who was brought back to her home yesterday by her husband after a nine months' absence, to-day passed through Uniontown in her green auto, having come from her country home in Hopwood, a suburb. Women of Uniontown who formerly associated with Mrs. Stone made it plain that they did not care for her acquaintance.

Mrs. Stone disappeared Dec. 2, and Emory Martin, a Philippines veteran, was on the same train. She declares that she left the train at Columbus and Martin continued on his way West. Mrs. Charlotte Ingalls, aged mother of Mrs. Stone, pledged her life to Mr. Stone that she had not eloped, and, finding she could not prove her statement, killed herself.

Mr. Stone issued this statement to-day:

Mrs. Stone is at home with me and the children. She deplores her disappearance, and accounts for it by the statement that she did not know what she was doing. Having taken the step, she remained during the entire period in seclusion and grief over the absence from home and fireside until I was successful in locating her. Her strange disappearance was simply one of those distressing occurrences that are always possible and come when least expected. For her sake, for my sake, and for our children's sake I ask the public to consider the sacredness of my home and our private life and regard this painful incident as closed.

Emory Martin is at present in St. Louis, according to Mrs. Martin, who is here. She has heard from him within the last few days, asking that she come to him with their two children, but Mrs. Martin has refused. There is a persistent rumor that Martin helped to restore Mrs. Stone to her husband. He may receive the $5,000 reward which Mr. Stone offered for news of her. Several large property deals will be closed through the return of Mrs. Stone.

DEADLY GASES ON COLLIER.

Five Men Killed When Typhoon Stove in Bulkheads.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 30.—Mysterious gases released from the hold of the United States collier Nanshan when the steel bulkheads of that vessel were stove in by a typhoon was responsible for the death of five members of her crew, according to the story of Elmer Hutchins, Third Assistant Engineer, who arrived here yesterday on board the cruiser Buffalo.

The vessel was en route from Cavite to Hongkong. Shortly after she ran into a terrific typhoon a noise like the explosion of gases was heard, and as soon as water began to pour into the paint locker, fumes arose from it in great volume.

Capt. Carver took five members of the Filipino crew forward with him to investigate. The failure of the men to return led Hutchins to make an investigation, and he was also overcome, but was revived. When the men were finally dragged back from the hold, it was found that the bodies had been stripped naked by the fumes. Capt. Carver revived, but Chief Officer Larkin, Second Officer Rapp, and three sailors died from inhaling the gases.

An investigation into the cause is being held at Hongkong.

JOBS FOR OLD TELEGRAPHERS.

Demand for Them So Great That the Strike Leaders Get Back.

Miss Hilda Svenson, Secretary of Local No. 16 of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union, reporter yesterday that there has been such a demand for telegraphers that a great many men and women who were never to be employed again by the Western Union or Postal Telegraph Companies on account of the active part they took in the last general strike of telegraphers are now being re-employed by both companies.

The wages were raised recently, she said, but are not yet as high as they were before the strike. Miss Svenson denied there was any intention of preparing for another strike.

HOFFSTOT DENIES PEONAGE CHARGES

Strikebreakers Have Been Permitted to Leave Plant at Any Time, He Says.

WARNED A STRIKE WAS ON

When Men Were Engaged They Were Told Conditions in McKees Rocks —Hoffstot's House Guarded.

President Frank N. Hoffstot of the Pressed Steel Car Company, at his office, 24 Broad Street, denounced yesterday what he termed misstatements regarding the strike in the McKees Rocks, Penn., plant, and took up the peonage charges. He insisted that the 1,000 strikebreakers who were taken to the McKees Rocks plant two weeks ago had been fully warned of the strike before leaving the city. He said they had been consistently well taken care of and had been free to quit when they chose. President Hoffstot at one point in his interview seemed inclined to blame the Federation of Labor for the misstatements.

"I want to state positively," he said, "that no effort has been made, either now or at any other time, to keep any workmen in our employ against their will. When the men were employed in New York several weeks ago a representative of the company was present, and in each case heard the men informed that there were labor difficulties at the works.

"As a matter of fact these peonage charges have been trumped up for the purpose of confusing the public as to the real question. Hoping to create a favorable public opinion, the dissatisfied employes have, through the National press, sent out an impression that the trouble at the works was over graft, renting of houses, and the so-called 'piece pool system.'

"The truth of the matter is that on Aug. 5 five former employes, calling themselves an 'Executive Committee,' presented a petition to the Pressed Steel Car Company setting forth their demands, as follows:

EMPLOYES' PETITION.

We, Executive Committee of the Employes of the Pressed Steel Car Company, hereby present petition for wage scale prior to April, 1907. Also time-and-a-half for overtime and double time for Sundays. Removal of Police Farrell.

No employe to be discharged without the case has been investigated and made public to the employe, (this request is made to prevent graft.)

This Executive Committee is prepared to meet the company at any time. Please notify us at the earliest possible moment, but not later than Monday noon, Aug. 9, 1909.

F. C. A. WISE, President.
JAMES M. A. CARR, Vice President.
W. PAVLEVITS, 2d Vice President.
J. N. CARR,
L. C. SNYDER,
DAVE TAKEG.

"Promptly on the receipt of this petition General Manager Ryder of the company issued a statement that 'All employes are entitled to fair treatment, and will get it.'

"An information bureau and interpreter's office was opened to act on all complaints. Notices in nine languages were placed about the works. Several hundred complaints have been investigated since that time. The bulk of these complaints proved to be based on misunderstandings on the part of the men themselves.

"Seven cases of graft have been presented. Five foremen have been discharged as a result of these. The two other cases are still being considered. The investigation has involved the verification of 25,000 pay envelopes. The men now in the works seem to be entirely contented. Their number is increasing every day, and they are turning out increasingly good work. So as to make sure that the food the men eat is good, different clerks take the same bill of fare as the men every day, and thus keep check on its quality."

President Hoffstot said, regarding this bill of fare, that it consisted, for one thing, of four different kinds of meat. When asked how he reconciled this with Truck Builder Gottfried's "bread and cabbage" tale, Mr. Hoffstot called attention to the letter which 17-year-old George Grafenstein, the band-saw operator, wrote to his mother at 1,598 Sixtieth Street, Brooklyn, last week. Young Grafenstein stated in it that the meals within the stockade were good, and that he was satisfied.

When asked about the Pressed Steel Car Company's contract to furnish 100 cars to the McAdoo Tunnel Company in this city, President Hoffstot said that twenty of these cars had been delivered since the beginning of the trouble. He also said that many of the accounts of accidents which have been circulated about the works were based on ignorant or brutal acts which individual laborers had committed.

When stories began to be printed as to the insufficient pay of the men recently, President Hoffstot had a table prepared showing the number of hours which the members of the strikers' Executive Committee had been working between May 15 and July 15. The table also shows the amount the men received during that time, and their average pay per hour. According to this table, J. C. A. Wise, who is an axle turner in the wheel and axle department, worked 356½ hours and earned $146.80 from May 15 to July 15. J. M. A. Carr, a machinist in the machine shop, worked 449½ hours and got $135.60. Mendel Cajlozits, a fitter in the passenger car department, worked 459½ hours and got $114.49. L. C. Snyder, a wireman in the electrical department, worked 531½ hours and earned $114.37. David Takeg, a fitter in the passenger car department, worked 339½ hours and earned $75.72 in two months.

"Wise, you see, earned an average of 41 cents an hour," said Mr. Hoffstot yesterday. "How many newspaper men, college graduates, too, earn as much as that? If it hadn't been for the great number of misstatements which the newspapers have published about the strike, the works would have been in full operation a long time ago with many of the old workmen, and the necessity of bringing in outside men would have been avoided."

Since the strike developed, President Hoffstot has been spending part of his time at his new Summer place, within a stone's throw of the Sands Point lighthouse, near Mineola, L. I. Several private detectives loiter about the grounds. A reporter's carriage was stopped twice on the way up the long circular driveway. In the early part of yesterday's interview President Hoffstot said he "certainly would not compromise with his striking employes." Later on, he intimated that he did not care to discuss that point at the present time.

STRIKERS' CHILDREN STRIKE.

Three at School and Strike Notice on a Telegraph Pole.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 30.—When the public school at Preston, in the Pressed Steel Car Company strike district, opened to-day after the Summer vacation only three small children out of an enrollment of 200 were present.

On a telegraph pole opposite the door of the building was posted a sign, written in a child's hand:

We are all on a strike.

Many of the strikers who have children were recently evicted from the company's houses, and are now living in another district. Those who remain are making no effort to send their children to school.

To-morrow is the last day allowed to the tenants of company houses, according to the eviction notices. A large number of families are moving to-day. State troopers continue to patrol the streets, but for the present a semblance of good feeling prevails between the guards and strikers.

DON'T ACT ON STRIKE CHARGES.

Commerce and Labor Officials Have No Orders Regarding McKees Rocks.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—No immediate action will be taken by the Department of Commerce and Labor following the request for an investigation of the McKees Rock situation addressed to Secretary Nagel yesterday by Secretary Frank P. Morrison of the American Federation of Labor. Mr. Morrison charged that aside from the rough treatment to which he said the workmen at the Pressed Steel Car Company's plant were subjected, they were not receiving their share of the profits accruing to the company under the protective system.

Though Mr. Morrison forwarded a copy of his petition to Mr. Neill at his Summer home in Massachusetts no word has yet reached the officers now in charge of the department here. Mr. McHarg said to-day that he only knows what he has seen in the press on the subject, and Labor Commisioner Neill is equally ignorant.

For the Home

we furnish telephone service on a Party Line, service where several people share a telephone circuit, thus reducing the cost to each user; or a Direct Line, service over an exclusive circuit. We also install Extension Telephones so that calls may be answered without running up or downstairs. We provide, too, Interior Telephone Service between the various rooms or floors of a residence.

For the Office

WHAT MADE YOU DEAF?

If you are going deaf, you may be sure that it is due to disease. Deafness is as much a disease as malaria or typhoid fever. Where there is deafness, the disease is usually located in the tubes that lead from the throat up to the middle ear. To free these tubes of disease requires careful and scientific medical treatment. Experience has shown me that the surgeon with his knife and with his probes which he passes through the nostrils into the ear tubes cannot master this disease. Nothing will restore the hearing to deaf ears but scientific medical treatment such as has been developed from the experience of one who has devoted many years to the study of the ear. Now, my business is restoring the hearing and freeing the ears of head noises. I have discovered a method of treating deaf ears that does away with the necessity of inserting instruments through the nostrils and into the ear tubes. Under my plan it is no longer necessary to blow air into the ear passages, for while this method gives relief for a few minutes, it forces the disease further up the Eustachian Tubes, and in time often adds to the deafness.

A case that was extremely interesting to me was that of Mr. Andrew Bergman, a gentleman who was sixty-three years of age when he consulted me in my Chicago Office. At that time Mr. Bergman said his trouble with his ears had started about two years before. He told me that he first noticed a lot of noise in his head and that sometimes this noise sounded like the roar of the sea and then again the noise would change and would be hissing in character, and that it annoyed him a great deal. He said that shortly after he noticed the noise his hearing began to fail and that his hearing grew worse and worse until he could not understand what was said to him unless the speaker shouted. He told me that if anyone was as close as two or three feet to him he could not understand what the person was saying.

I placed Mr. Bergman under my new method of treatment for ear trouble, and after about sixty days' treatment he told me that he could hear anything that was said to him. "And, furthermore," he said, "the noises in my head that bothered me are now all gone."

The case of Mr. Bergman is mentioned to show what can often be accomplished in cases of head noises and deafness for many persons who have passed middle life. Mr. Bergman resides at 1,543 Aldine Avenue, Chicago.

Here is who I am and what I have done: I graduated in medicine in New York in 1879. I was the prize winner of my class. I won in competitive examination the position of Physician to Bellevue Hospital, where I served in 1879 and 1880.

I have made a specialty of diseases of the throat and ear for thirty years. I decided the best way I could tell the people who I was and what I had done was to advertise in the daily papers.

The following interview with Professor Loomis will explain what he thought of me:

(N. Y. World, Sept. 2, 1894.)

"Professor Loomis of the University of New York, the great specialist, said in alluding to medical men who advertise: "Dr. McCoy, for instance, is an able man, well educated, a thorough scientist, and a first-class physician. He is a graduate of Bellevue Hospital. He advertises, does an immense business, and is doing much good.'"

If you think my training and experience should make me a good ear doctor, I should be pleased to have you visit my offices. It will cost you nothing for an examination and advice. If your ears have been so neglected that treatment will not restore your hearing, I have the best instrument ever invented to make deaf people hear. It is called the Baker Microphone. I will be pleased to give you an opportunity to test this little device free.

FRENCH FLIERS PLAN TO COME NEXT YEAR

Bleriot Says He Will Win Back Cup Curtiss Captured—Breakfast to Aviators.

MANY ORDER AEROPLANES

Rheims Meet Successful Financially, and Everybody Confident of Future of Aviation as Practical Science.

RHEIMS, Aug. 30.—"Aviation Week" came to its official close to-day with a gala breakfast given by the Committee of Organization in honor of the aviators. There were over 500 guests present, all enthusiastic over the wonderful showing of the week. Louis Blériot, the Channel flier, attended with his arm in a sling, a result of his accident of yesterday when his machine fell and caught fire, and he and Glenn H. Curtiss, the American; Henry Farman, the Englishman, and Hubert Latham and Louis Paulhan, the French fliers, received ovations, the assemblage arising again and again to cheer them.

Cortlandt F. Bishop, President of the American Aero Club, was warmly greeted also. In an address in the name of the club and the people of America Mr. Bishop heartily thanked the committee for its cordial reception to and treatment of the Americans, and he invited the aviators of the world to come to America. He protested good-naturedly against the insinuation of Mr. Wallace, President of the British Aero Club, that America had placed a prohibitory export duty on international cups, pointing out that the first Gordon Bennett Balloon Cup, captured in 1906, had returned to Europe the following year. "Naturally we will do our best to keep this cup," Mr. Bishop said, "but if you will come—if Bériot comes, as he has promised—I shall fear for the result."

Aviators "Looked Up To."

Mr. Bishop was roundly applauded when he compared the Roman gladiatorial combats, which took place in the ancient City of Rheims, with the enlightened tournament of last week. "In those days the spectators looked down on the combatants," Mr. Bishop said. "Now they look up to them."

Turning to the champagne manufacturers Mr. Bishop said that he knew that Rheims was dissatisfied with the increase of American duties on champagne; nevertheless, he was sure they would be pleased to know that the American who had won the international cup came from a small district of New York State that owed much of its prosperity to the fact that after the fall of the first French empire some discontented wine growers of Rheims had emigrated to America, taking their grapevines with them.

In conclusion Mr. Bishop said if America entertained her visitors half as well as Rheims had welcomed hers he would be content.

The Marquis de Polignac announced a gift of $2,000 to Latham by a Paris newspaper "for his beautiful flights." Latham accepted, not for himself, but on behalf of "Lavasseur, the genius whose motor had made the flights possible."

Mr. Wallace, in his address, said that a new era for humanity had been born on the field of Bétheny. Referring to the winning of the International Cup by an American, Mr. Wallace said that Europe could hardly be content with this. "But England has discovered to her sorrow," he said, "that the American regulations are against the exporting of international cups."

Mr. Curtiss did not speak.

The meeting at Rheims has been an enormous success financially. There were over 200,000 paid entries to the aerodrome yesterday, and probably 100,000 more people witnessed the flights from the hills outside the course.

The aeroplane companies took orders for fifty-two aeroplanes during the week, most of them from persons not before interested in aviation. Manufacturers believe that sportsmen of every country will now begin to buy aeroplanes, particularly as the flights here during the week, estimated at over 1,300, were without a single fatal accident. Flying is thus no more dangerous than was automobiling in its early stages. The cost of the different machines ranges from $2,000 to $5,000.

A total of 536,554 words were telegraphed from the press stand at Bétheny during the week. Most of the Paris newspaper men used the telephone.

Speaking of his flight yesterday for height, Latham said that after he reached an altitude of 500 feet his engine, owing, perhaps, to the height, missed fire continually, and made it impossible for him to drive his machine higher. When asked what he would have done had his motor stopped, he answered: "I should have glided to the ground. I felt no apprehension whatever."

Prizes Officially Announced.

The Marquis de Polignac, President of the committee, officially announced the results of the awards and prizes. All the speeches dwelt upon the idea that the week's achievements in mechanical flight marked only the beginning of what the next few years will show in the way of aviation.

Among the speakers, besides those already mentioned, were the Mayor of Rheims, M. Langlis, and M. Loreau, President of the Mixed Aerial Commission. The latter referred to the disappointment of France at the failure to retain the International Cup, the speed trophy captured by Curtiss, and he provoked a hearty round of applause when he added: "But I appropriate for myself and all Frenchmen the remark of Blériot when he learned that France had been defeated. This was, 'I will go to American and win it back.'"

During the breakfast the Marquis de Polignac announced that the second series of contests between aviators would be held Aug. 21, 1910.

Curtiss's machine was packed and shipped to Paris this afternoon, Curtiss himself, together with Cortlandt F. Bishop, following it later by automobile to the French capital. The difficulty in securing passage on board a steamer next Saturday for New York, coupled with the insistence of the managers of the races to be held at Brescia, Italy, makes Curtiss again hesitate about returning to America. The Brescia committee offers to guarantee all the aviator's expenses and to reduce the distance of the big race, which is worth $6,000, from 100 to 50 kilometres, that is from 62 miles to 31 miles.

PARIS, Aug. 30.—Quentin Bauchart, an influential member of the City Council, will ask for an appropriation of $20,000 for an aeroplane race between Paris and Bordeaux.

Paul Doumer, former President of the Chamber of Deputies, reading the lesson of Rheims, declared to-day that the period of preliminaries was now past, and that the world's scientists and engineers should set to work on the construction of aeroplanes that should be practical as well as powerful.

Some of the French newspapers especially interested in aviation are already agitating for a change of rules for the International Cup, which was won by Glenn H. Curtiss. They contend that a 20-kilometer (12 2-5 miles) dash does not furnish an adequate test of the merits of the machines, and point out that when the conditions were laid down 20 kilometers seemed a great achievement, but this has already been outgrown. It is suggested that a change be made to a long-distance endurance race.

ZEPPELIN III. WRECKED.

Dirigible Breaks Propellers on Return Voyage from Berlin.

BUELZIG, Germany, Aug. 30.—The Zeppelin airship, which started at 11:24 last night from the Templehof Parade Ground in Berlin on its return voyage to Friedrichshafen, met with an accident early this morning, and landed here at 7 o'clock.

The two forward propellers were broken about 5 o'clock, and fragments of one of the screws tore two large holes in the envelope of one of the forward compartments. This caused the gas to escape. But the airship was kept up by throwing over ballast long enough for a safe landing to be made.

The ship came down gently, and it now rests on a meadow within fifty yards of the railroad tracks here. The weather is fine and there is no wind. It will take at least two days to complete the repairs. Telegrams have been sent to Friedrichshafen for workmen, materials, and gas.

BERLIN, Aug. 30.—The accident to the Zeppelin III. is attributed by technical observers to the fact that her motors had not been properly tried out under service conditions. It appears that Zeppelin III., as at present fitted out, was tried in the air for only two and one-half hours previous to undertaking the trip to Berlin. Other than this the motors have had only the ordinary shop tests.

It had been the intention to show Zeppelin III. to the Kaiser and to Francis Joseph, the Emperor of Austria, within the same week. Emperor Francis Joseph has arranged to visit the newly constructed airship works on the Lake of Constance, and Zeppelin III. was hurrying back to the south in order to reach the lake to-morrow. When the news of the breakdown was transmitted to the Kaiser he ordered that Zeppelin II., the airship which has already been turned over to the army, be sent from the Rhine depot to the Lake of Constance for the inspection of Emperor Francis Joseph.

It had been arranged that the airship accompany Francis Joseph's yacht on the return journey to Bregenz.

WRIGHT FLIES IN BERLIN.

Tries Out German-Built Machine and Finds It Behaves Well.

BERLIN, Aug. 30.—Orville Wright tested his German-built aeroplane in a fifteen-minute flight shortly after daylight this morning above the Tempelhof parade ground. No public announcement was made, as Mr. Wright desired to see how the machine worked before giving his public exhibition next Thursday.

The aeronaut is generally satisfied with the way in which the craft behaved. A battalion of the guards, using the ground for drill purposes, ceased their manoeuvres to observe the strange sight of the aeroplane circling swiftly over the field.

WELLMAN BACK FROM ARCTIC.

Reaches Tromsoe from Spitzbergen, Leaving 3 Men to Guard Balloon.

TROMSOE, Norway, Aug. 30.—Walter Wellman, who recently made an unsuccessful attempt to reach the North Pole in a dirigible balloon, arrived here to-day from Spitzbergen.

Jiminez President of Costa Rica.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—A cablegram received to-night from San José by Señor Calvo, the Costa Rican Minister, stated that the returns from the election held in Costa Rica to-day indicated the election of Ricardo Jiminez for President.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

BUDAPEST, Aug. 30.—The Americans who are now in Budapest attending the International Medical Congress to-day visited the statue of Washington and deposited a number of wreaths at the base of the memorial. Count Albert Apponyi, Minister of Public Instruction, made a speech in English, in which he extolled Washington.

BATAVIA, Java, Aug. 30.—Sharp punishment has been inflicted upon the rebels of the Island of Flores by a Dutch detachment, fifteen members of which were killed in an ambush set by the natives. The Dutch sent for reinforcements and attacked the rebels fiercely. The natives had 117 men killed.

VIENNA, Aug. 30.—The American Waterways Commission returned last evening from Hungary. A steamer has been placed at the disposal of the commission by the Austrian Government and an inspection will be made of the Danube works.

FLOOD DEATH LIST NOW REACHES 2,000

Property Loss in Mexican District Estimated at $30,000,000—$12,000,000 in Monterey.

REYES LEAVES HIS RETREAT

Report That He Is Marching to Stricken City Excites Political Conjecture in Spite of the Disaster.

MONTERREY, Mexico, Aug. 30.—With 800 bodies recovered and buried in Monterey up to nightfall, 2,000 is now the estimated number of flood victims throughout the valley of the Santa Catarina River. The number of homeless, many of whom are destitute, is placed at between 15,000 and 20,000.

To-day the Santa Catarina River at Monterey has subsided sufficiently to permit a passage into the district lying to the south, and a visit to that section by a correspondent revealed appalling conditions. People who had been saved from the flood of Saturday morning had been without food until to-day, when a small amount of bread and beans was gotten across.

Reports from down the river state that many bodies have been recovered, but there are many that will never be accounted for, as the Santa Catarina bed is filled with quicksand and many of those lost have no doubt disappeared in the sands.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 30.—A conservative estimate of the damage wrought at Monterey by the flood places the dead at 1,400 and the property loss at $12,000,000. The entire loss in the flood district is estimated at $30,000,000. The river has now gone down, and the danger is over. Up to the present time 650 bodies have been recovered. One entire quarter of the city of Monterey was destroyed, and 15,000 persons to-day are homeless. The water mains are useless, and the city is consequently without drinking water.

There is neither light nor street car service, for the power plant has been seriously damaged. It will be impossible to resume the train service for a week, and as a result the city is threatened with a food famine. The slaughter houses have been destroyed. Ten thousand persons are being fed on bread, coffee, and soup by the municipal authorities, and the American Consulate is giving food to all who apply.

Thousands of persons have taken refuge in the cathedral and the churches. Many adobe structures, soaked by the rain, are falling, and there has been some additional loss of life from this cause.

The railroad situation is deplorable. The branch of the International between Monterey and Tampico suffered a score of washouts. The iron bridge at San Juan has gone, and seventy-five miles of the track of the Matamoras branch have been washed out. There are a dozen washouts between Matamoras and Cuevas, and the big iron bridge over the Rinconada, between Salillo and Monterey, is gone. The total of the loss to the railroads is not definitely known, but it probably will exceed $500,000.

Eighteen blocks of residences and business houses were entirely washed away. The more wealthy people of Monterey, together with the American residents, are contributing to the Mayor's fund, which is being expended for food.

The greatest loss of life is said to have been caused by the collapse of the reservoir dam. Monterey is situated in a cup-like valley, and is surrounded on three sides by steep mountains. The waters rushed into this valley down the bed of the Santa Catarina River. This stream is ordinarily 150 yards wide, but with the coming of the flood its banks were fully three-quarters of a mile apart. It is estimated that eighteen inches of rain fell.

The Federal authorities here are busy with the organization of relief measures. Benefit theatrical performances, bull fights, and fairs are being planned. Subscription lists are being opened all over Mexico City, and the other cities of the Republic are responding to Monterey's urgent call for assistance.

Reports indicate that other river settlements have been swept away. The town of Cadereyta, situated in the river bottom, is said to have been destroyed, and it is feared that there has been heavy loss of life in the country districts adjacent to the Santa Catarina River.

President Diaz this afternoon telegraphed $30,000 to Monterey. Vice President Corral has contributed $2,000, and Ambassador Thompson $1,000 to the fund. Others are contributing liberally, public subscription lists having been opened in all parts of the republic.

The fact that the Red Cross of the United States is to give aid to the sufferers has been learned here with satisfaction. On behalf of the United States Government the American Ambassador has sent condolences to President Diaz.

The National Bank officials estimate the loss in the business centre of Monterey at $5,000,000. The loss to the big smelter and industrial plants outside the city limits will amount to as much. The value of the eighteen blocks of buildings, mostly of poor construction, which were destroyed is fixed at about $3,000,000. The railway losses, although not yet known, are believed to reach $4,000,000. Many of the smaller settlements in the State have been wholly destroyed or badly damaged, while the crops everywhere have been ruined. It is estimated that the total losses in the whole district affected by the cyclone and floods will approximate $30,000,000.

ASKS AID FOR MONTERREY.

Consul There Says City Has Claim, Since Most of Its Trade Is with Us.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—An appeal for assistance for the Monterey sufferers, addressed to the American people, has been received at the State Department from Consul General Hanna, the American official at the scene of the disaster. He asks that funds be addressed to the Consulate.

Mr. Hanna states that Monterey has an especial appeal to American sympathy in the fact that 85 per cent. of the city's trade is with this country.

At the offices of the National Red Cross it was stated to-day that no action would be taken at once. The return of the chief officers of the organization, who are now out of the city, is awaited.

Ambassador Thompson telegraphed to the State Department from Mexico City that the ruin and destitution justify help from the American people.

Acting Secretary of State Adee to-day telegraphed Ambassador Thompson to tender to the Mexican Government the sincere condolence and sorrow of the United States Government and the American people for the sufferers at Monterey.

STRAUS PLEADS FOR BABIES.

Before International Medical Congress He Advocates Pasteurization of Milk.

BUDAPEST, Aug. 30.—Nathan Straus, the New York philanthropist, to-day made an appeal to the International Medical Congress, in session here, to save the babies from tuberculosis and the other infectious diseases that are often carried in milk.

Mr. Straus paid particular attention to milk as a cause of tuberculosis.

"The specific germ," he said, "that causes tuberculosis is found in much of the milk that is used for human food. In America only one-tenth of 1 per cent. of the milk daily sold is certified as free from tubercle bacilli. Conditions are much the same in every country.

"Among scientific men, save the few who in 1901 committed themselves to a hasty assumption, no one now in 1909 doubts the transmission of bovine tuberculosis through milk. Nor does any one, unless similarly committed to some pet error, dispute the certain efficacy of pasteurization as killing the infection, rendering the milk safe, while in no way impairing its food qualities.

"It is, in fact, proved, with mathematical certainty, that progress in fighting the great white plague depends upon the adoption of methods of evicting the tubercle bacilli from the milk supplies. The elimination of the diseased animals from the herds, it is admitted, will be the work of years, involving the expenditure of many millions. The destruction of the tubercle bacilli in milk is the work of half an hour, the cost trifling."

Mr. Straus pointed out that in killing the disease germs in milk by pasteurization he had reduced the death rate among children in one foundling asylum in New York from 44.56 per cent. to 19.8 per cent., had cut the infantile death rate in Sandhausen, Germany, to less than half of the average of the preceding five years, had achieved the same result in Eberswalde, near Berlin, where not one of the children fed upon pasteurized milk had died from October, 1908, to July, 1909. He pointed out that the infantile death rate in New York City had steadily declined with the increase in the use of pasteurized milk, from 96.5 per 1,000 in 1891 to 49.6 in 1908.

"Every expenditure," he continued, "upon the means to destroy lives in war should be duplicated by the setting apart of like sums for the saving of lives by the prevention of disease.

"The advocates of expensive armament justify their programmes by saying that they seek to prevent war. No excuse is necessary for the proposal that like millions at least be spent to prevent sickness and death."

ROW OVER GOMPERS IN LABOR CONGRESS

He Tells European Union Men American Unionism Is First of All American.

AUSTRIAN DENOUNCES HIM

Says Americans Will Soon See Folly of Standing Alone—Gompers Says Problems and Temperaments Differ.

PARIS, Aug. 30.—Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, was the central personage of the drama at the first day's session of the sixth International Trades Unions Congress when several European delegates bitterly denounced what they declared was the equivocal attitude of the American Federation with reference to joining the international movement. Mr. Gompers insisted that the problems and policies of American trades unionism were so bound up with American traditions and ideas that he doubted if union were possible with the leaders of the European movement, where the trades union tendencies were of a character temperamentally different.

As an evidence that labor men in the United States were, nevertheless, anxious for international co-operation, in spite of these differences, Mr. Gompers introduced a proposal favoring a world-wide organization, which would "defend the rights and interests of all and create international fraternity and solidarity."

The clash came over the question of the exact status of Mr. Gompers and the American Federation of Labor in the conference. Mr. Gompers explained that for the present he was merely an auditor, but was ready to give his opinions. It had been the aspiration of the American workmen to come into closer contact with the labor movement in Europe, as they were profoundly attached to the cause of solidarity of labor. One obstacle in the way of affiliation, he said, was the feeling that antagonism existed in Europe toward American trades unionism. Moreover, it was feared that the American workmen might be compelled to subordinate their policies to those of men knowing little or nothing about American industrial conditions and problems.

"Personally," he continued, "I have no authority to pledge the affiliation of the American Federation of Labor, but I believe it will come in time."

Mr. Gompers's statement was received coldly. Several delegates jumped to their feet to protest. Hueber, an Austrian delegate, vehemently characterized Mr. Gompers's explanation as a mockery. He, like the others, he said, had been under the impression that the Americans meant business, and that Mr. Gompers was the official delegate from that country. Unless this were the case he could not understand how the American resolutions happened to be printed in the official programme.

"We thank you for your opinions," he said pointedly, "but we do not need them. Your policies may not permit you to come to us, but one day you American workmen will realize that your policies are erroneous, and you will see the necessity of joining the International Confederation."

Mr. Gompers was unmoved by this rebuke.

"I regret," he exclaimed, "that you have misconstrued my remarks as an attack upon European trades unionism. I repeat we are sincerely desirous of international federation, but only so far as it tends to preserve the American conception of unionism. If Europe does not want us it will be unfortunate. Nevertheless, we will continue to do everything possible to attain the goal for which the human race is struggling—international fraternity and unity."

Hueber retorted that it was now seven years since the Americans began talking about joining the international confederation, and it was about time a decision was reached. "It now appears," he concluded, "that Mr. Gompers is merely on a voyage of discovery."

M. Legien, the International Secretary, ended the controversy by declaring that Mr. Gompers was only a guest, but he hoped that the American was convinced that the moment had arrived for the American Federation of Labor to join forces with their European brethren.

Talks on Teeth
By G. GORDON MARTIN
(Incorporated)
Bad Teeth an Offense.

Bad teeth and an offensive breath are things to be abhorred and done away with. First, because bad teeth conceal germs which are passed along down with the food. These are apt to wander around into other channels and sow seeds of disease.

Bad teeth, therefore, are not alone ugly, but a menace to the owner. A bad breath—well, there is no defense for that at all.

How to get rid of bad teeth and all the evils they have in their train is, therefore, of the greatest concern to those afflicted with them.

The Martinolar method of restoring missing teeth without the use of plates or ordinary "Bridge" work is the natural and logical solution of the bad teeth, bad breath nuisance—for if teeth are hopelessly bad, decayed, they should be extracted by our painless process and new Martinolar teeth substituted. These new teeth will look, feel and act like real teeth and not false ones. A set of Martinolar teeth are so perfect that no person, even a dentist, could tell whether or not they were artificial teeth or nature's.

We want to talk teeth to you at your earliest convenience—and make a free examination of your mouth.

You know that beautiful teeth are a good asset. Begin right now to realize on this asset by calling on us for a free consultation.

Our free book explains the method. Send for it to-day.

GIANTS AND CUBS SWAP SHUT-OUTS

Chicago Makes Two Runs in the First Game, New York Five in the Second.

PFIESTER AND MATTY WIN

Cyclonic pitching by Pfiester and Ames in one battle and by Reulbach and Mathewson in the next yesterday gave a big Polo Grounds crowd twenty innings of thrills such as it seldom is the good fortune even of metropolitan gamegoers to experience in a single afternoon. Both scores were shutouts. The first struggle ran eleven innings, and resulted in a victory for the Cubs by a margin of two runs; the second lasted eight and a half rounds, the Giants making five tallies in mid-game. Ames twirled superbly until the very last chapter of the long battle. Then two singles, two sacrifices, and a double worked his ruin. Up to that frame three scattered hits were all he allowed, and he walked only three men. Reulbach blew in the fifth inning, McGraw's men bunching on him there four of their five raps, which were blended with a base on balls, a fumble by Tinker, a wild throw by Archer, a wild pitch, and five stolen bases, including two double steals that carried Seymour and Murray over the plate.

The middle stanza of the second battle was a glittering example of the ease with which the best of teams can go to pieces. Twenty thousand persons, after seeing Husk's Huskies shut out the McGrawites in an eleven-round contest and watching the mighty Reulbach hold the home team hitless through four innings, were astounded by the facility with which the locals put it all over Reulbach and his support in one turn at bat. They saw not only Reulbach, but Archer and Tinker, shoot skyward with a suddenness that took their breath away, while even Evers was affected and most of the rest of the team were demoralized. Then they witnessed the abrupt return to earth of the entire Chicago outfit, Reulbach restricting the Coogan's Bluff crew to one fruitless bingle in what was left of the fight.

But, round to form though they might and as swiftly as they might, the Cubs could make no impression on the incomparable Mathewson. That worthy citizen put the clamps on the visitors at the outset, and kept them on throughout. Only in one round did they group as many as two safeties, and their total of taps was five. Two men were down when the Big Fellow permitted the Cubs to connect hits, and a running catch by Herzog disposed of the last Chicagoan. Christy was at the top of his form. He let nobody walk, and though he struck out just two men that was because he was placing proper reliance on his support. Eleven lake-siders flied to outfielders and two of them to Bridwell. Nine assists were required to retire the enemy in the nine innings, and two of them were made by Matty. It was a brilliant specimen of the Boy Wonder's work. With such command and speed he could win a world series.

Ames depended more on his own arm than on his backers. Consequently he wore himself down in ten rounds, and was at the mercy of Chance's crowd in the eleventh. With the exception of Tinker, who walked, not one Westerner reached first base in the first five innings of the opening encounter, and none made second. In the sixth Tinker led off with a triple, but Doyle's beautiful scoop and lightning hurl on Archer's grounder nipped Joe at the plate. Pfiester sacrificed Archer to second, but the runner was caught at third when Bridwell snapped Evers's grasser to Devlin. Herzog's muff of Schulte's fly put a Cub on first with one gone in the seventh. Seymour's quick throw-in after bagging Chance's raise held Schulte at the far turn, and, though Steinfeldt drew a pass, Hofman's loft fell to Murray. Tinker, in the eighth, again started something, this time with a double—a scratch two-bagger because Herzog yelled to Bridwell, "I've got it!" and then misjudged it. But another good toss by Bridwell to Devlin on Archer's bound headed off Joe at third, and, after Pfiester fanned and Evers walked, Sheckard died from the box to the bag. Steinfeldt doubled in the ninth, but two men were out and Hofman lifted to Bridwell.

All that time the locals had fought furiously to get a man around, but not always wisely. In the first, Seymour singled with one down and went to second on Schulte's fumble, only to see Herzog line to Sheckard and Murray die at first. A pitched ball hit Schlei in the third, and, though Ames bunt flied to the boxman, Doyle, after sending seven fouls into the grand stand, scratched a single to second. Then Seymour bumped a low line fly to Chance, who scooped it off the dahytops, and the Admiral was doubled off second by Husk's hurl to Tinker. Manager McCraw, Coacher Latham, and several other Giants insisted Chance trapped the ball, but Umpire Johnstone ruled otherwise. Herzog's leaguer and Devlin's stroll with one out gave New York a good chance in the fourth, but Bridwell forced Herzog and Merkle's seeming safety was turned into a out by Sheckard's fine catch, Jimmy falling on his face with the ball gripped in his outstretched hands, in plain sight of the blindest umpire.

Murray walked with two out in the sixth, and Merkle singled with two gone in the seventh, but both were caught stealing. Doyle doubled in the eighth, but again two men were down, and Seymour was thrown out by Tinker. In the ninth Herzog waited successfully, only to be forced by Murray. Pink stole second and went to third on Devlin's fly to Hofman, but Bridwell couldn't make first. It was a double procession in the tenth. Then came the eleventh-inning catastrophe. Evers singled, Sheckard sacrificed, Schulte was safe because Ames and Schlei waited vainly for his bunt to roll foul; Johnny scored on Chance's sacrifice fly, and Steinfeldt's two-bagger brought Schulte home, following which Hofman fouled to Merkle. Seymour singled with one out, and went to second on a balk, but Schulte backed to the fence for Myers's near triple and Murray flied to Sheckard, ending the struggle.

New York's half of the second game's fifth inning was tempestuous. Mathewson won his own game, for he batted home the only run his side needed. Merkle, Myers, and Matty singled successively, Christy's drive bringing Freddie in. Doyle's high one fell into Archer's mitt, but Seymour singled, scoring the Chief. A wild pitch advanced Christy and Cy. Herzog striking out. Matty recorded when Murray got a life on Tinker's fumble, Cy taking third. Seymour and Murray started to work a double steal, but the foremost runner barely escaped being caught in the alley, and was glad to get back to third. Red, however, stole second in the meantime. Then the two did pull off a double steal, Cy scoring and Ping going to third. Shafer sauntered, and he and Murray achieved another double steal, Red registering and the youngster, because of Archer's wild throw, making third. Shafer tried to slip in on a pitched ball, but Archer touched him out.

Pittsburg Pulls Through by 2 to 1.

Pittsburg won its fourth straight victory from Brooklyn yesterday, but by the narrow margin of 2 to 1. The downfall of the Superbas was due to Wilson going to first in the seventh inning on being hit by a pitched ball, and finally scoring on Bergen's bad throw to second. This was the only error made during the game, and Bergen's throwing previously had been accurate and effective. McIntire kept the hits of the visitors well scattered, with the exception of the fourth inning, when singles by Miller and Gibson, Abstein's sacrifice and Wilson's out gave Pittsburg an earned run. Brooklyn also earned its run in the fifth inning, when Byrne tumbled over in his attempt to reach McMillan's bunt, and on Bergen's sacrifice McMillan landed on second. He reached third on McIntire's out, and scored on Burch's second successive safe hit. After this the Brooklyns were put out in one, two, three order, with the exception of the eighth inning, when Liefield sent Burch to first on called balls, his only one of the game.

The damaging inning to Brooklyn was the seventh, when Wilson, the first batsman, was hit by a pitched ball. Liefield's safe hit placed him on second, and Byrne's long fly to Meyers, Brooklyn's new recruit, enabled him to reach third. Liefield, who was still at first, drew a throw from Bergen in his attempt to steal second, but the throw was low, and Wilson scored.

What pleased the 1,200 fans present was the fact of Wagner failing to make a hit, finally striking out in his last effort at the bat. The score:

Of course there's a good deal of nonsense about the difference between Spring and Fall four-in-hands.

Most of us average men wear much the same sort of scarfs at all seasons.

But no self-respecting furnishings department admits that, and ours insists on entirely new stock every Spring and Fall.

Of course an entirely new stock is good business, so we humor them with a cleanup sale each season.

2557 silk four-in-hands this time—all sorts of silks.

A new scarf will freshen up a shabby suit, but what's the use of half measures when we've so many good suits reduced to $15?

JOYETTE WINS FIRST SONDER BOAT RACE

GERMANS BADLY BEATEN

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., Aug. 30.—America won a decisive victory over Germany to-day in the first of the series of sonder boat races for the President Taft and Gov. Draper cups. All three places at the top of the list were captured by the defenders of the trophies, while the three challenging boats brought up well to the rear.

Joyette, owned by Commodore William H. Childs of the Bensonhurst Yacht Club, Brooklyn, N. Y., won first honors, with Ellen, owned by Charles P. Curtis of Boston, second, and Wolf, owned by Caleb Loring of Boston, third. Next came Margarethe, one of the German challengers, and following her, more than six minutes astern, was Hevella, while Seehund II. finished last.

Seehund II. carried away her throat halyards within five minutes after crossing the starting line, and was unable to resume racing for fully ten minutes, while the damage was being repaired.

Vice Admiral Barandon, Chairman of the Joint Committee of the Kaiserlicher Yacht Club of Kiel and the Eastern Yacht Club of Boston, when asked after the race what he thought of the result, said:

"Oh, your boats are so much faster. It was a great surprise to me that our yachts did not do better, for this was real Kiel weather."

The Admiral, who represents the Kaiserlicher Yacht Club, felt very much annoyed because of the disabling of Seehund II., and said that it should not have happened. "I have sailed in hundreds of races," he declared, "and have never met with an accident in my life in my rigging. It should have been seen to before Seehund II. went to the starting line."

The air was clear as crystal, the wind delightfully cool and of from twelve to fifteen miles strength, and the sea so smooth that it did no more than give the contesting yachts a slight jump. Hundreds of yachts of every description came out of Marblehead Harbor, laden with expectant throngs to see the sport. Four revenue cutters were on hand for the purpose of keeping the course clear, and the United States Navy was represented by Secretary Meyer, on board the dispatch boat Dolphin, while the President's yacht Sylph, with several ladies on the bridge, steamed close to the line.

The race was sailed over a triangular course, with the starting line established about five miles southeast of Marblehead Rock. The first leg of the course was a dead beat to windward of 2½ miles, almost directly to the mouth of the harbor; the second leg a broad reach to the eastward 2½ miles, and the third leg another reach to the stakeboat. This gave the contesting yachts a total distance of 15 miles to cover, as they were sent around the triangle twice.

The warning signal was given promptly at 11:15 o'clock, followed by the starting whistle ten minutes later.

Joyette, with W. W. Swan at the helm, got away in the choicest position, to windward of the other five boats and slightly in the lead of Ellen. Hevella was sandwiched in between the two American boats, but was slightly astern of them, a position which Capt. Protzen quickly remedied by coming about on the port tack in order to get a clear wind. All six boats held on a course toward the Manchester shore and were traveling at a fine clip when Seehund's throat halyards gave way and the mainsail ran half way down the mast. She immediately fell off, and a man was sent aloft to repair the damage. The other boats were all close together, with Joyette in the lead, until they had covered half the distance to the first turning mark, when Wolf, by taking a long hitch to starboard toward Marblehead Neck, gained some slight advantage from a lee bow tide and assumed first place just before rounding the mark.

At the turn Wolf had an advantage of fifteen seconds over Joyette, which was thirty-five seconds in the lead of Hevella, while Ellen turned fifteen seconds behind the latter. Margarethe was five seconds behind Ellen, and Seehund II. was more than ten minutes behind Margarethe. On the second leg of the triangle, with balloon jibs and spinnakers spread to the stiff breeze, the three American boats quickly showed their superiority and were closely bunched, Joyette and Ellen both sliding by Wolf, with the former in first place.

Joyette showed wonderful speed rounding the second flag stake seven seconds ahead of Ellen and thirty-two seconds ahead of Wolf, while Margarethe was ten seconds behind the latter. On the reach to the committee boat for the third leg Joyette gained just one second on Ellen.

Sheets were then flattened for the windward work over the first leg of the triangle again, and the breeze seemed to have lightened somewhat as the dainty little craft sped on their way. Joyette liked the conditions immensely, and on tack after tack she increased her lead, until she rounded the windward mark with an advantage of forty-four seconds over Wolf, which had taken second place. Ellen, however, was only six seconds behind Wolf, while Margarethe, the leading German yacht, was nearly two minutes astern of her nearest American opponent. Reaching down to the second mark Ellen quickly ran by Wolf.

The final leg of the race was sailed in a breeze that steadily flattened out, and the leading boats crept away from the German racers in good shape, except in the case of Seehund II. The latter had turned the second mark more than twenty-five minutes behind Joyette, but she finished the race less than twenty minutes astern, which seemed to show that Seehund II. possessed some light weather qualities on a reach. The summary:

INCREASE OF APPETITE.

The father of the protective system in America is generally supposed to be ALEXANDER HAMILTON. He headed the list of champions which, in historic succession, included HENRY CLAY, HORACE GREELEY, Representative MORRILL, JOHN SHERMAN, and WILLIAM MCKINLEY. All these statesmen and publicists based their theory of protection on the "infant industry" idea, on the relative weakness of a new country, and on the necessity of making the United States entirely independent, in war and peace, of all other nations. President GARFIELD, who was one of the most eloquent and convinced of the supporters of this theory of protection, declared that he was for the protection that leads to free trade. Mr. BLAINE, who was among the most far-sighted of the politicians of his day, believed in a shaping of tariffs that would gradually permit large exports, and denounced the later policy of his party because it did not provide for what he regarded as the inevitable development of the trade of the country.

Now, it is no exaggeration to say that if any of these leaders of American political life were alive to-day they would condemn the recent action of Congress as totally and disastrously in conflict with the principles of true protection and with the interests of the land. They would indeed condemn the bald doctrine laid down in the Republican platform last year that the Government is under any sort of obligation, or has any right, to undertake a guarantee of the profits of a particular class of business men at the cost of the general consumers—that is, the mass, of the Nation. And they would denounce in unstinted phrase the action of Congress in going far beyond even this doctrine, disregarding the difference of cost altogether, and placing duties on all branches of foreign trade utterly inconsistent with the original conception of protection. Yet this betrayal of party pledges and of the principles of the fathers of protection has been achieved in spite of a strong popular opposition.

To what is it due? Simply to that inordinate and unavoidable increase of appetite that surely follows the granting of privilege. The interests that have been fattened at the public expense have become so powerful, they have got their grip on such extensive combinations, they have so organized themselves and their supporters, that the political machinery of the majority party is in their hands. The unorganized sentiment and opinion opposed to them are unable at the point of attack, that is, in the legislative committees and the lobbies of the National capital, to resist them.

Are we, then, to infer that the victory will always be with the combined forces of greed, and that the vastly larger but imperfectly organized and scattered forces of the true and lasting interests of the Nation are forever to be defeated? By no means. It is a question of time and growth. The American people are steadily advancing beyond any need or any plausible excuse for extravagant protection, as Mr. MCKINLEY pointed out in his memorable speech on the eve of his untimely death. This fact was reluctantly acknowledged by the Republican Party last year. It has repeatedly been admitted by President TAFT. It was proclaimed incessantly by the liberal members of the Senate in the recent debates. It was the professed basis of the whole revision movement. That movement failed at the last moment on account of the desperate and unscrupulous tactics of the greedy interests, acting on a body of legislators chosen under the old régime and subservient to their dictation or unable to resist their seductions. We do not believe that the same or like conditions can ever again be realized. As Mr. MCKINLEY's attitude at the opening of his second term was far in advance of that he occupied in 1890; as the professed position of the party last year was far in advance of that it took in 1900, and as the real wishes of Mr. TAFT were, we are confident, quite different from those to be inferred from his signing of the Payne bill, so, we are confident, other changes, all in the direction of breaking through the tariff barriers, will follow. Let us hope that the public utterances of the President during his coming tour in the West will clearly make known his position. It would not be surprising if Mr. TAFT should see, before his final retirement from the Presidency, a real and honest and downward revision of the tariff.

HAFFEN AND AHEARN.

The successive removals by the Governor of Borough Presidents AHEARN and HAFFEN suggest a bit of the philosophy of EPICTETUS, which we here subjoin:

> Many men and women are good, or seem to be good, because they are not tried above their power, but if a temptation should suddenly surprise them when they are not prepared for it they are conquered and they fall. Even a man who has trained himself to the exercise of his rational faculties and has for a long time passed a blameless life may in a moment when his vigilance is relaxed, when he is off his guard, be defeated by the enemy whom he has always about with him.

In the case of the incumbent of a Borough President's office the temptation to err from the line of sworn duty is not sudden, but it is continuous and heavy. Other Borough Presidents have gotten themselves into trouble during this Administration of the city, and it has occurred to the Charter Revision Commission that the confused apportionment of responsibilities among several sub-Mayors of Greater New York has much to do with misfeasance in this office, even though the holders thereof had been accounted fairly honest politicians. The Bureau of Municipal Research, which, together with various civic bodies, has exposed the loose accountings of the Borough President's office, demands that all Mayoralty candidates be committed in advance to the appointment of free and competent Commissioners of Accounts and to the establishment of records that will facilitate their investigations.

That would help. It ought to be demanded. It would largely remove the opportunities for temptation from men like HAFFEN and AHEARN. But in this case the narrowing of responsibility to one accredited head of Greater New York City would accomplish the desired result more effectually.

DELAY BY LAW.

If the laws of the State of New York, taken as a whole, had been invented by some mischievous person with intention to bar ordinary people from having their rights quickly and rightly passed upon in the courts, he would have deserved the praise of the Father of Mischief for the ingenuity of his methods and the practical success attained in their application. Attorney General O'MALLEY, in his address before the National Association of Attorneys General, remarked:

> Generally speaking, the history of enforcing these laws in this country is a record of protracted litigation. If a Federal statute, its provisions are assailed from the lowest to the highest Federal court. If a State law, its validity must be established in every State court of the State enacting it and oftentimes in every Federal court before it is enforceable.

Now, in the great body of cases before the courts, particularly cases where individuals are parties, bitter experience shows the truth of the old maxim that delay of justice is denial of justice. In States where changes in the old laws, or laws entirely new, are turned out by the hundred every year, it is clear that serious delay is involved in this confused and dilatory arrangement for testing the validity of a law. The very best laws, those which meet an obvious and substantial need of the community, can have no effect until they have gone through this tedious process. The delay is always costly and may be disastrous. In addition to the injury thus needlessly imposed on the community, there is that which arises from the final invalidating of many enactments. After a law technically "goes into effect" its terms must be considered in all suits to which it is intended to apply. Until it has gone through the judicial mill, all its provisions are held to be valid and must be respected. If ultimately it is set aside, much that has been done under it must be undone, and a readjustment of rights and obligations must be had. Here is another expensive effect of delay.

There is still another source of delay and confusion in our present system to which Attorney General O'MALLEY referred more specifically. It is the defective organization of the State Law Department. This, in the State of New York, is a very serious matter. We have, in the first place, at the head of the department an officer chosen for two years only and paid a salary much lower than the income a lawyer competent for the place could readily earn in private practice. As Mr. O'MALLEY says, he can hardly do more within his term than familiarize himself with the work of his office. His re-election depends upon the fluctuations and exigencies of politics, and even if it be secured, the State gets only a couple of years of service based on reasonable experience. The net result is practically little more than the imperfect training of a succession of lawyers for service which the State rejects as soon as the training has been attained. The head of the Department, thus hampered, has a corps of assistants, insufficient in number, poorly paid and constantly changed. As an alleviation to the wretched conditions thus created, the Department is obliged frequently to employ special counsel, always an expensive expedient and usually very unsatisfactory. The inconvenience and expense are often still greater when, as is generally the case, the various State Departments have special counsel of their own.

The remedies proposed by Mr. O'MALLEY are, first, an increase in the number of assistants to the Attorney General, with longer terms, better pay, and more secure tenure; and, second, the concentration in the Attorney General's office, and under his authority, of all the legal business of the State. These measures would undoubtedly have a wholesome effect, and they could be adopted without any change in the Constitution such as would be necessary to lengthen the term of the Attorney General. They are in the line of the general movement in the legal profession to simplify and accelerate the enforcement of law and the administration of justice. Their object is such that they should receive the careful consideration of all rational men without regard to party.

DO WE NEED MINISTERS?

The question which serves as a title to these remarks is not our own. It is asked, in the Homiletic Review, by the Rev. Dr. GEORGE W. RICHARDS, whose own answer seems to be that we do still need ministers of the Gospel, but they must be men trained to adapt themselves to the changed and changing conditions of these times. We might supplement this answer by declaring that we do not need more clergymen to meddle with politics, to open Sunday baseball games with prayer and preaching, or to waste time and words foolishly by planning alterations of the Federal Constitution which would restrict the suffrage to fathers of families and increase a man's voting power according to the measure of his fatherhood.

Dr. RICHARDS, however, takes no account of the weaklings, the posers, and the sensationalists in the Christian ministry. He takes up his subject seriously, and points out that the annual production of Protestant ministers by the schools of universities of Germany has fallen off 54 per cent. in twenty years while the enrollment of students has increased 100 per cent., and that, while the number of law students in this country, in the same period, has increased 848 per cent., the number of theological students has not kept pace with the growth of population. These statistics may merely prove that there used to be an overproduction of ministers. Surely there is no complaint of a scarcity of them now.

Dr. RICHARDS infers that much of the work once done by "the mitred bishop and the gowned priest" is now done by the Young Men's Christian Association, "the teacher, the lecturer, the social-settlement worker, the philanthropist, the printing press, and the phonograph." There is more truth than jesting in this inference, of course, and although Dr. RICHARDS, as a theologian of broad ideas and sound logic, goes further into this subject than we care to follow him, we may safely say that while there is no excuse in these days for an overproduction of ministers, yet those who have qualities above the ordinary as ethical teachers and spiritual guides will find no lack of work cut out for them in the modern world. The best education is needed to strengthen and develop those inherent qualities; the old ignorance of the masses is disappearing, and the enlightened people demand enlightened leaders and will follow no others.

SUMMER RESORT BUSINESS.

The Summer resort season is waning rapidly and reports from many directions indicate that the hotel keepers and owners of rentable cottages have not all found it very profitable. New York has certainly been lively enough all Summer long, but the attractions of New York as a place of Summer residence are chiefly measured by the facilities for getting away from it. Even in its best neighborhoods the town is not as agreeable, even in moderately warm weather, as the fields and woods, the mountains and seashore, and it is precisely in the best neighborhoods, the upper east and west sides, that signs of desertion of the town by its residents appear in the Spring and are not removed, nowadays, until late in the Autumn.

On the other hand, the multiplication of motor cars of moderate cost has undoubtedly injured to some extent the business of the Summer resorts, and especially of many of the larger Summer hotels, the managers of which have been endeavoring to adapt themselves to the changed conditions by encouraging the new engine of quick travel rather than cursing it for destroying their profits, and, if they do not go so far as to arrange automobile meetings and mild road contests for prizes, try to cater as politely as possible to the week-end parties in motor cars, to provide garage facilities for them, and attract them by "special rates."

A swift run at the week's end over many miles of pleasingly diversified roads, with the head of the house on the front seat, or not infrequently driving the machine, and the family packed in comfortably, with stops overnight at comfortable and not too expensive hostelries, has probably superseded in many domestic establishments the Summer-long separation of the wife and children from the home's provider. But the automobile since its advent has been more or less unjustly accused of injuring literature, music, and the drama, and playing havoc with athletic sports. We must not now jump at the conclusion that it seriously interferes with the Summer resort business.

Thus far the Summer of 1909, in spite of two or three noteworthy efforts of the mercury in the thermometer to establish high records, has been cool enough to make staying at home in town neither uncomfortable nor unhealthful. The reports of the ocean steamship lines indicate that European travel this Summer has been somewhat less than that of the most profitable years. Probably the business of the Summer resorts has not been poorer than that. No diminution has been noted in the crowds on the ocean promenades at Asbury Park and Atlantic City. Some of the Catskill hotels have been crowded. The express companies have had trunks enough to handle to keep their men busy, and deliveries of baggage have generally been as slow as in former years. It is likely that the returns of the season, when the calculations are all made, will be found only a little smaller than the average. But the loss of that little is not pleasant for the hotel keepers.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Ballooning Is Now Out of Date.

Berlin, making a heavy drain upon its abundant sentiment and patriotism, has managed to act as if it was wildly enthusiastic over the arrival there of Count ZEPPELIN's grotesque monster. His silken bubble succeeded at last in getting safely into and out of the German capital, but it had the inevitable disasters both coming and going. Now that its master has received his well-earned cheers from the populace and been embraced by his Kaiser, while the saturnine WRIGHT looked on and kept his face straight in spite of what must have been his inclination to laugh, Germany will, of course, turn its attention with the rest of the world to real aerial navigation as it was last and most brilliantly exemplified at Rheims.

A vast deal of time and money has been wasted on the "balloon with a paddle," but not much more of either will be, for everybody now knows that the airship of the future will be an aeroplane—a machine worthy of the name, with due proportion between available power and mass to be moved, and obviously destined in time to be at least as indifferent to meteorological eccentricities and caprices as are the ships that creep heavily about on the face of the waters. To be sure, that time has not yet come, but it is in view for the long-sighted.

At Rheims there was the beginning of a refusal to wait for gentle zephyrs before attempting flight, and though there were some accidents, they were amazingly few, considering how many rivals of the birds took part in the contests and how often they tempted the still uncovenanted mercies of the upper air. No doubt luck played its part in keeping down the mishaps, and fatalities are to be expected in the early days of aviation, but as yet, with thousands of long and short flights already made, there has been only one serious fall, and even now this newest and greatest of sports is apparently much safer than automobile racing.

The early predictions that aviation would always demand the best skill of trained athletes seem to have been refuted. From present indications, the art of flying can be learned in a few weeks by any cool-headed man with a rudimentary knowledge of mechanics, and one can expect to hear any day that a woman has proved the capacity of her sex to guide an aeroplane. Neither the ability nor the courage lacks, now that men have shown the way.

Leniency Was Undeserved.

Though there was a marked decrease on Sunday of disorder on the lines of urban transportation, the police found occasion to arrest a good many boys and men. Practically every one of these rowdies must have known that his conduct was under a special observation, but they misbehaved in spite of that knowledge. They were, therefore, quite without excuse, for even though their dull minds were unable to understand why they should not make themselves obnoxious to fellow-passengers on trains and boats, they had been fully and publicly warned that the long tolerance which they have enjoyed was at an end.

It is surprising to note, therefore, that Magistrate KROTEL treated them with rather less severity than he did the misdemeanants brought before him on similar charges the previous Sunday. He did not, indeed, talk any nonsense about "boys will be boys," but he contented himself for the most part with inflicting small fines, and the number of offenders sent to the workhouse was comparatively small. Of course, we do not blame him or anybody else for feeling reluctance to send boys there, for we have very little confidence in the reformative efficiency of jails, as most of them are now conducted, but these particular boys were apparently in much need of the only sort of lesson they are likely to heed, and from their persistence in wrongdoing, it is evident that they can be conveniently appealed to only through their fears. Neither imprisonment nor the apprehension of imprisonment will make them any better, but either will improve their conduct, and that is much to be desired.

Where the Magistrate drew the line, presumably, was between a mere display of animal spirits, more troublesome than offensive, and the actual assaults, physical or verbal, which have so long been a common incident of Sunday travel on the trains frequented by crowds returning from the suburbs. That, no doubt, is what the other Magistrates, with their "boys will be boys," tried to do, but the plan did not work well, as the milder form of misbehavior tends inevitably to degenerate into the graver. Cars used by the general public are not proper places for active play, however innocent in itself, and the fact that the trouble has been greater on the returning than on the outgoing trains makes the excuse of suppressed energies a poor one.

Conservation Can Wait, He Thinks.

Assistant Secretary MCHARG has leaped into public attention on the eve of his departure from the Department of Commerce and Labor by making a few earnest remarks on the subject of conserving National resources. Had he contented himself with denouncing the methods of conservation invented or adopted by the last Administration and continued by the present one he would have raised only fairly debatable questions, and such facts as he had to present would have been examined with amiable interest by everybody—except, perhaps, by his official superiors, whose sense of discipline might well have been offended. But Mr. MCHARG, who seems to be a very thoroughgoing person, felt moved to attack the whole idea and policy of preserving and using with economy the Nation's natural wealth.

He thinks that course absurdly premature, if not altogether unnecessary. Why, he says in effect, the one State of Washington has timber enough to meet the whole country's demands for fifty years. There is neither necessity nor excuse for admitting the truth of that contention, but even if it were true it would be a strange argument in favor of letting the despoilers of the forests go on in the future as in the past. Fifty years from now Mr. MCHARG, like not a few other people, will not have any personal interest in the price of lumber or the effects of erosion, but some few thousands already born and a good many more thousands still to be born will be alive then, and it is hardly fair, especially for a man in high official position, to leave them and their needs out of all consideration.

Mr. MCHARG's position, apparently, is that, as posterity has done nothing for him, he will let posterity solve its own problems—and will take care to give it some big ones to solve. It is, perhaps, just as well that he insists on resigning.

AUTO RACING.

Does Not Consider Accidents a Reason For Stopping It.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I be allowed to say a few words regarding the hue and cry that has lately gone up against speed auto racing as a result of the accidents at Indianapolis and at Brighton Beach? Certainly accidents of this kind are deplorable; they are indeed tragic, and serve to spoil the enjoyment for the spectators. I saw the accident at Brighton. It was a ghastly sight, and I hope I shall never see another like it. At the same time I think it is absurd to stop speed racing on account of these accidents, and for the following reasons:

It is very rarely that accidents of this kind occur. There have only been five or six of the kind in several years. The loss of life and limb has been astonishingly small when compared with many other sports. Polo, boxing, football, and similar recreations furnish a casualty list every year far exceeding that of all auto races combined. Even the brutal hazing at West Point has claimed as many maimed limbs as has speed racing. Every year hundreds of persons are killed in train wrecks, whereas the accidents to the drivers of racing machines could be counted on the two hands. One might protest, indeed, that, so far as figures prove anything, it is far more unsafe to ride in a railway carriage than in a racing auto. But I shall not press the point. Certain it is that, considering the conditions under which racing meets are held, the number of accidents is remarkably small. And it is not only probable but certain that if officials took ample precautions and prepared the track properly these dangers would be reduced to a minimum.

Let me illustrate my point in the following manner: On the back page of to-day's TIMES (Aug. 30) I find the following headings: 1—"Double Hurts from an Auto; Councilman Cooper of Irvington Has Hand Crushed and Arm Bruised." 2—"Five Killed in Auto; Machine, Carrying Family Party, Hit by Train Near St. Louis." 3—"Autos Crash Head On; Mrs. John Dix Suffers a Broken Rib in a Long Island Hill Accident." 4—"Auto Hits Wall; Two Hurt; C. A. Morgan of Westerly, R. I., in White Plains Hospital." 5—"Five Hurt in Auto Crash; Touring Car Hit Carriages, Tossing Children and Parents to Street." Here, then, are five serious accidents—all, mind you, recorded in one day in one paper—that have happened to persons in autos who were not racing. This list fully equals the total fatalities at Indianapolis and Brighton combined, and these persons were not racing at all. These figures could be added to every day, for hardly a day passes without some accident of the kind. And yet when any similar accident occurs on a race track an extraordinary protest is made, simply because it has happened on a race track. Yet similar accidents are occurring every day all over the country, and no one thinks of paying the least attention to them. An accident is an accident, no matter where it occurs, and, providing proper precautions are taken by the officials, I can see no more reason for stopping automobile speed racing than for stopping automobiling in general, or for stopping any sport where limbs and even life are endangered. There are many of these, and auto racing is as entitled to public recognition as any other legitimate sport.

COLLEGES AND CULTURE.

President Hadley's Essay In The Times of Saturday.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I greatly admire the article of President Hadley in your paper of Aug. 28. I have been waiting for two or three years for an article of that kind upon the subject of university education and culture. As the author intimates, the times demand men of noble culture. As he shows, "technical training" cannot produce them. Technical training will make men skillful and useful as producers, but will not fit them for the higher culture of citizenship. Men must have the higher culture to make them able lawyers, physicians, preachers, and writers. If men have the right kind of culture, they will have a clear and piercing vision. The uncultured man sees things in the mass, but the cultured man sees things in their right and proper relation. We need more men of a "literary type," and they need to be educated along this line. Thus trained they will develop into eminent preachers, lawyers, journalists, writers, and orators.

The age is so materialistic, scientific, secular, and practical that it needs great men, who will give it inspiration—an intellectual and moral uplift. While it may be difficult to define culture, as President Hadley suggests, yet, in my opinion, there is only one way to obtain it, and that is by studying and reading great and good books, in the university or out of it.

Dr. Wiley and the Ice Box.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

During the Pure Food Convention in Denver, Dr. Wiley saw fit to emulate a shieking sister and become a bawling brother in a tirade on woman housekeepers. Idle know naughts! rather learn a Beethoven sonata, a bridge rule, or—I have forgotten what else, something about our clothes, no doubt—than learn how to keep an ice box, where food is kept, sweet and germless.

When Dr. Wiley has said all that he cracks the nut of the whole situation and tells us how to properly disinfect and make harmless the necessary refrigerator. His allusion to formaldehyde is rather vague, but when he speaks of burning sulphur he appeals to what most if not every housekeeper knows about. I doubt, though, if many thought of applying it to the deadly chest. I have used unremittingly hot water, soap, soda, &c., recommended in the various housekeeping paragraphs and household journals. Yet often an odor persists. But a little lump of sulphur, a closed box for an interval, and, presto! an innocuous food receptacle.

I am thankful for the information, and wish remedies for our lacks were as readily forthcoming as denunciation. I confess to a little knowledge of Beethoven—we need some antidote—but have not yet perpetrated a single bridge rule. For the kernel of instruction, I thank Dr. Wiley.

Recovery for Nerves.

When the man with little money and a five days' growth of whiskers on his face finds himself on the verge of nervous prostration, due to several days' overindulgence in strong drink, without friend or place to sleep, and seeks some out-of-the-way place to get back his nerves, he is not only doing an injustice to himself but to society.

Many have read that Bellevue Hospital is a place where those that cannot afford to go to a private sanitarium for treatment are beaten, &c. I should ask all such people to scorn such ideas, Bellevue Hospital should command the respect of both rich and poor, who may be unfortunate enough to allow themselves to get beyond their own control. Those who have had occasion to go there for treatment were amazed at the bigness of its wards. Nurses and doctors stand about ready to aid you with kind treatment. You are clothed in clean clothes, suitable to the occasion. The bed you are put in is immaculate, the cooking is wholesome, the surroundings are all improving. It is, in fine, the best place to harbor the rich as well as the poor human being who has lost his hold on life.

LAW COMMISSION MEETS.

Secret Session of Men Who Will Strengthen Anti-Trust Law.

Attorney General Wickersham, Charles Nagel, Secretary of Commerce and Labor; Solicitor General Bowers, Congressman Charles Townsend of Michigan, Martin A. Knapp, Chairman of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, and Charles Prouty of the same commission, who were appointed by President Taft to consider ways of strengthening the Sherman anti-trust law, held their first session at the Bar Association Building, 42 West Forty-fourth Street, yesterday. The session was very much of an "executive session," even the stenographers being excluded, and it was announced that absolutely no statement of any kind would be given out until the sittings of the commission are finished.

Mr. Wickersham's private secretary, Frank Cole, said that it was probable that the proceedings would be reported to Mr. Taft at Beverly without any statement to newspapers.

It is expected that the commission will get down to serious business to-day. Attorney General Wickersham has just come from a conference with the President, and it is expected that he will present Mr. Taft's views on the changes he considers necessary in the law.

CHERRY TREES OF JAPAN.

Significance of the Proposed Gift from the Mikado.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the daily press there has recently appeared a little item of news whose full significance the American public does not realize. Instead of sending warships to participate in the Hudson-Fulton celebration, the Emperor of Japan has indicated his desire to convey to the New York authorities a gift of 300 cherry trees, one for each year the Hudson has been known to the world, to be planted on both sides of Riverside Drive, or in any other spot the officials may determine.

The ordinary reader will simply be struck with this intelligence as a very nice thing for the Emperor to do, and people who do not believe much in military and naval display will perhaps say in their hearts that the Emperor has chosen the better way to indicate his felicitation. But only a very few will know that, from the Japanese viewpoint, much more is intended. The cherry blossom is not only the greatly beloved flower of the Japanese people, sharing a place in their affections with the chrysanthemum, the national flower of the empire, but is a symbol of the very soul of the manhood of Japan. That is why it has been celebrated in song; that is why the people flock to the cherry gardens in crowds, in order that, while gazing upon the outward beauty, their souls may be baptized afresh with a baptism of the real Japanese spirit.

There is nothing in the American life to illustrate just what the cherry means to the Japanese people. But suppose we had some symbol of nature that would embody all that Plymouth Rock, all that the Declaration of Independence, all that the Emancipation Proclamation means, of liberty, patriotism, union; and then suppose our President should on some occasion, with the greatest care, select 300 of the choicest specimens of this emblem and officially send them as representing the felicitations of the American people to a friendly power, at the time of some important celebration—can you imagine what such a gift would mean?

Well, all that—and more—is contained in this gift of the cherry trees from the Emperor of Japan; and they doubtless will be of the choicest variety, and Japanese gardeners are to accompany the trees to see that they are planted after their native habit and get a good start on American soil. One would think that after a while our people would come to realize the very friendly attitude of Japan for our country, as one after another of these graceful reminders reach us. And they have been many in recent years—in fact, increasing in number as the attitude of some portions of our country has been growing in suspicion and even hostility toward the representatives of that nation in our midst. One is reminded of Péter's query, "How often shall my brother sin against me and I forgive him? Until seven times?" and the great Teacher's reply, "I say not unto thee until seven times, but until seventy times seven." Undoubtedly Japan is in line with that teaching, though she may not be recognized as a Christian nation.

Cornell Will Approve Chimes.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I imagine that not many Cornellians are protesting against the bells in the Metropolitan Tower. In fact, I think that they would not object to many more chimes. At Cornell we have the bells ringing every quarter of the hour—twice at fifteen minutes after the hour, four times at thirty minutes, six times at three-quarters after the hour, and eight times at the end of the hour, after which the chimes strike the hour of the day.

Many Cornellians must be agreeably surprised to hear these chimes for the first time, and I doubt if there are not some alumni who come to the neighborhood during lunch hour to hear these beautiful bells, and perhaps some are seen in the neighborhood at night. I am glad the Cornell Club's new quarters are near the tower, and the sound of the bells at this place will probably stop many a julep, perhaps cause many a toast, and recall many a college prank.

Would it not be a good idea to have some singing, say every Tuesday and Wednesday evening? I am sure it would be enjoyable. It would be a good chance for some of the singers who stroll around Broadway doing nothing. Again, we might teach some of our citizens the "Star-Spangled Banner," "America," and perhaps teach them a hymn or two.

I suppose the actor folk would not object to the music, and if the chimes in a far-away city recall the events near the Metropolitan Tower district, just as those in the latter recall the Cornell college days, imagine the beautiful midnight suppers that will be eaten again—in memory—in the far-away Western "one-night towns."

Postal Savings Banks.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I was brought up among thrifty people in England, and from a schoolboy I had money in the Post Office. We boys as we grew older, who knew nothing of banks, trust syndicates, or their ways, knew that "Auntie," that is, the late Queen Victoria, was looking after it, and that, if we lost our job, we could get our money. I guarantee, many a poor scrubwoman who has a few dollars in the drawer at home—who can't trust banks because of ignorance of their ways—would pull it out and leave it with our friend Uncle Sam, if the postal savings bank was established.

If there are any doubters around, tell them to go to England, live on $3 a week among the working classes, and see for themselves how much the Englishman living alone will have in the Post Office in six months on a salary of $3 or $4.

Restore the "Shinplasters."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In all this discussion about currency nothing is said about the revival of the old war-time "shinplasters."

However they may have been maligned as "filthy rags," there never has been anything so convenient for remitting small sums by mail.

The public will surely consider it a great favor to have them restored. Can you not sound a favorable note in their praise?

THE NEW JACKDAW OF RHEIMS.

And in league with the devil, 'twas gravely averred,
They cursed him with book and they cursed him with bell,
And all of the curses 'twas tedious to tell,
But now there's another bold jackdaw at Rheims,
Such as Bishop or monk ne'er imagined in dreams,
He fairly astounded the sages and scholars,
And flew right away with ten thousand dollars.

DIRECT PRIMARIES CONDEMNED IN WEST

Assemblyman Conklin Says New York Inquirers Found Political Anarchy Due to Them.

NOT EFFECTIVE FOR REFORM

Best Citizens, He Declares, Refuse to Go Through an Expensive, Personal Campaign for Office.

ALBANY, Aug. 30.—"Direct nominations, as we have seen the idea, is the greatest gold brick that was ever handed to a confiding people," was the declaration here to-day of Assemblyman Robert S. Conklin of New York City, a member of the special committee appointed by the last Legislature to investigate the question of direct primaries and report to the Legislature of 1910.

Mr. Conklin said the committee had completed its investigations in States which have direct primary laws.

He voted for a Direct Nominations bill in 1907 and 1908, but was against the Hinman-Green bill this year. He declared that hereafter he would oppose direct nominations.

"The people of New York State," he said, "have no idea of the political anarchy that exists in the Middle Western States. Direct nominations has driven parties entirely out of existence in many communities. In Wisconsin there is no longer a Republican Party and a Democratic Party. There are several personal factions, the most prominent of which are the Stalwarts and the Half Breeds. The latter are the followers of La Follette and the former are his opponents. Those who were at one time Democrats have disappeared and have gone into the Republican Party, so-called, to vote at the primaries. There are no longer party principles, but only personal views of faction leaders.

"To some extent the same state of affairs exists in Iowa and Kansas and everywhere else where this system of direct nominations is in operation. The minority party has been swallowed up.

Primaries Called an Iniquity.

"In every community we have visited there has been but one opinion expressed by the decent, sober, intelligent citizen, the conservative, professional men—and that has been of disgust and loathing for the political anarchy in which they had been plunged. Time and again we met with the expression from the biggest men in the cities we visited: 'For God's sake, do not inflict this iniquity on the State of New York.'"

Mr. Conklin cited several cases where direct nominations were unsatisfactory.

"In Boston," he continued, "after ten years of trial, direct nominations is to be abandoned with the adoption of the new charter. In Philadelphia the 'machine' has nominated the candidate of the independent party twice, seized the organization, and compelled it to change its name. It has driven the Democratic Party out of existence. Practically the same state of affairs exists in Pittsburg. By his sworn statement it cost Mayor McGee $22,000 to secure the nomination, and an illiterate laborer on a railroad was picked up by a rich man, who spent $30,000, and made him the nominee for Sheriff.

"Mayor Lose of Milwaukee has held office for ten years. The people are well satisfied with him, and under the convention system it cost him on an average of $3,000 on four different occasions that he ran. Last year, under the direct primary it cost him by his sworn statement about $20,000. He was a witness before the commission as was Mayor McGee of Pittsburg, both opposing the law as it existed in those respective States. In Detroit the estimate of money paid to newspapers for advertisements for candidates before the last primary, which dealt only with local affairs, was $110,000.

Men of High Standing Decline.

"In Indianapolis not a single man of high standing in the community could be induced to run through the ordeal of a bitter personal fight to secure a nomination, and only old political hacks presented themselves. The citizens for the first time in the city's history are now trying to get some good men to run for office as petition nominees because the party nominees are impossible even to consider. The good people stayed at home in the primary an dthe vote of the hangers-on nominated the candidate.

"In Chicago one Democratic primary ballot that we have contains 192 names for the voter to select from when he visits the polls on primary day. The man at the top of the column is almost invariably chosen for any minor office.

"Instance after instance of this kind may be cited. Not one single good result, so far as the character of the public officers is concerned, was pointed out to us in all our travel. The number of witnesses for and against the principle of direct nominations was about the same, but the advocates always had some proposed amendment to the existing law to suggest which would remedy the faults in the system they then had in operation.

"Direct nominations as we have seen it is the greatest gold brick that was ever handed to a confiding people. The West adopted it because of the abuses of the unregenerate delegate and convention system. In no State was there previous to the indorsement of the direct primary a regulated primary such as we have today. The people who are trying to make this a principle of the Republican Party do not realize what they are doing. If opposition to this means splitting the party wide open, I still believe that it should be fought all along the line—let the cost be what it may. If there is any yielding for the sake of expediency it will bring its bitter regrets later. The Republican Party must save this State from this political monstrosity."

NO JURISDICTION, BUT ACTS.

Judge Lacombe Keeps Alive in His Court Suit Not Properly There.

The foreclosure proceedings upon the first mortgage of the Second Avenue Railroad instituted by the Guaranty Trust Company in the State courts last Winter took a still more peculiar turn yesterday, when Judge Lacombe, in the United States Circuit Court, while declaring that the Federal courts are without jurisdiction in the case, extended the time for taking testimony in the action until Nov. 9. Now some of the bondholders of the Second Avenue Road are inclined to wonder in just what tribunal their property may be.

The trouble started on July 12 last, when a member of the law firm of Davies, Stone & Auerbach, counsel for the Guaranty Trust Company, got steered into the wrong court by his law clerk and asked Judge Lacombe, instead of a Justice of the Supreme Court, to extend the time for the taking of testimony. There being no opposition, Judge Lacombe granted the order, but subsequently, when a stipulation was presented on Aug. 3, he discovered that the receivership was in the State courts and entered this memorandum:

> Carry this over to Aug. 25. I don't understand that this court has any jurisdiction either of the parties or the subject matter.

Yesterday, however, Judge Lacombe signed the order extending the time for the taking of testimony, and in so doing filed this supplementary memorandum:

> As indicated in the memorandum of Aug. 3, I am convinced that this court is without power to give the relief prayed for. Inasmuch, however, as it is stated that all parties, recognizing this situation, wish to have the cause kept alive pending efforts at reorganization, the order extending the time for taking the proofs, which has been consented to, is signed.

"LE PROPHETE" SUNG AT THE MANHATTAN

Meyerbeer's Opera Greeted with Enthusiasm at Opening of Educational Season.

PRINCIPALS SHOW POWER

LE PROPHETE, an opera by Meyerbeer. Manhattan Opera House.

Musical director, M. Giuseppe Sturani.

Oscar Hammerstein began at his Manhattan Opera House last evening what he calls a season of "educational opera" with a performance of "Le Prophète," by Meyerbeer. Mr. Hammerstein deals in the unusual and the surprising. A season of what is spoken of as "grand opera" on any such scale as Mr. Hammerstein proposes, and as was exemplified by the performance of last evening, has not been undertaken in New York in the dog days within the recollection of man; and most ambitious musical enterprises that have been purveyed for New York in the Summer, from Theodore Thomas's concerts in the Central Park Garden and Anton Seidl's later ones of the same sort, as well as others of more recent memory, have resulted in more or less dismal financial failure.

But "grand opera," after all, makes a different appeal; and Mr. Hammerstein is of course counting on various hypothetical factors to carry him to success: on the newly awakened frenzy for operatic entertainment that is supposed to have kindled all the levels of New York's population; on the interest of the Summer visitors to this resort in what they have never had opportunity to enjoy at this time before.

Then Mr. Hammerstein has, so to speak, a large operatic plant that has to be kept up; and a not very expensive company of principals, added to the orchestra and the chorus that he must maintain in any event, would enable him to invite a new public to help him utilize his resources. If any had supposed that the word "educational" was one with which some conjuring was to be done, Mr. Hammerstein corrected them in his little speech upon the stage that never fails on an opening night. He is not educating the public in music. He meant to give performances of grand opera at cheap prices that by their grandeur should educate people to come to his regular season at regular prices.

The audience last evening was large and seemed ready to be educated. It found numerous occasions for applause and enthusiasm, which indeed were not misplaced. The performance was in many ways of surprising excellence. It certainly was not to be compared with any of the offerings of opera at cheap prices that are made from time to time in this town. It had much of the flavor of the real thing in opera; there were several of the principal singers of competence and more than competence; there was a chorus, large, sonorous, and active, well trained in both singing and action on the stage. There was appropriate if not always rich or sumptuous scenery, and there were new and effective costumes.

The performance was carried through with vigor, not, however, without certain hesitations and haltings and a good deal of roughness and slipshod playing by the orchestra. Mr. Giuseppe Sturani, the conductor, did not give evidence on this occasion of the firm grasp of authority or much fine or instinctive feeling for musical beauty; but there was much against him on an opening night of this sort, and especially in an opera of the musical calibre of "Le Prophète."

They who had the principal parts in this production were by no means unworthy of the respectful attention and interest of the listeners. Though they were not artists who would have shone in the regular seasons of either of the New York Opera Houses, there was much that was praiseworthy in the performances of George Lucas as the Prophet and Mlle. Margarita d'Alvarez as Fidès. There were moments when both showed real power, a sense of the higher values of dramatic singing.

It was, in fact, little unfeeling to begin this educational process with such a work, in which the respective contributions of Meyerbeer and Scribe are music of the most obvious manufacture, and action of the sheerest theatricalism. It is hard to ask musicians in this day and generation to do their best in a work that has aged and wrinkled so in a couple of generations, and that the passing of its vogue has revealed as so essentially dull and uninspired.

Mr. Lucas will be remembered—or, perhaps, he will not be remembered—as a singer of lesser tenor parts in the company of the Metropolitan Opera House. He took advantage of the greater opportunity that his part in "Le Prophète" offered him, and he added something to his stature as an artist. His voice is indeed not of great beauty, but he made it count for all its value, helping himself sometimes by a not unskilful us e of falsetto tones. His acting showed routine and skill, and there were places, as in the last scene of the third act, and the Cathedral scene, with which the performance ended, when he showed a fine feeling for dramatic effect.

Mlle. Margarite d'Alvarez had likewise the skill of a practical operatic hand, and made the strong effects that are provided for her in "Ah, mon Fils!" and the scene in which he disowns her son. She is perhaps the member of last night's cast best endowed vocally. Not much is to be said of Mme. Walter-Villa's achievements as a singer, but she has an agreeable presence and a skill in action and in posture that gave pleasure.

The performance was one that stood on a different plane from most performances of opera that have been heard in New York. Considering the cast to those who heard it, it was certainly remarkable. There was uncommonly good money's worth in it, and there was promise of something to interest the public Mr Hammerstein is aiming to reach in the future performances of the seasson.

LONDON SEES 'ARSENE LUPIN.'

Gerald Du Maurier a Success as Thief —Some Galleryites Boo Play.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—"Arsène Lupin" was produced here to-night at Charles Frohman's Duke of York Theatre, and met with very considerable success despite the efforts of some galleryites to boo the piece.

Gerald Du Maurier played the title rôle with almost Gallic verve and lightness of touch, and Dennis Eadie was excellent as the detective. Marguerite Leslie scored a marked success as Germaine, and Alexandra Carlisle quite justified Mr. Frohman's selection of her for the difficult rôle of Sonia. When other members of the company have caught the spirit of delicate burlesque which to-night only Du Maurier evidenced there should be no booing from the gallery.

Three accidents marked the production. Alexandra Carlisle slipped and fell heavily; then a whole box of matches caught fire as Du Maurier was lighting a cigarette, and finally a sliding bookcase which conceals a lift in the last act refused to budge, but both latter incidents were carried off admirably by Du Maurier's presence of mind.

STAGE WIFE TO BE A BRIDE.

Miss Lou Ripley to Marry John F. Webber, Her "Henpecked Husband."

In spite of the fact that they are playing an unhappily married pair in David Belasco's new comedy, "Is Matrimony a Failure?" Miss Lou Ripley and John F. Webber decided yesterday to announce their engagement, and the wedding will take place in the Winter.

Miss Ripley, who has been playing character parts for twenty years, frankly confesses that she considered herself a spinster, and Mr. Webber, who is fifty, thought he was a confirmed bachelor. He has been on the stage thirty-five years, but the two never met until they became members of the present company. Mr. Webber plays Jaspar Spark, the henpecked husband, and Miss Ripley, Mrs. Stark, the nagging wife.

The engagement was announced Sunday at the home of Miss Ripley's mother in Boston, whither the two, chaperoned by Miss Louise Mackintosh, went after the performance Saturday night.

Mabel Taliaferro Takes Boy's Role.

Although the audience didn't know it, the part of Willie Willoughby in "Polly of the Circus" at the Grand Opera House last night, was taken, not by six-year-old Burton James, whose name was down on the programme for it, but by twenty-two-year-old Mabel Taliaferro, the elder sister of Edith Taliaferro, who last night took the leading rôle of Polly in the play. When the manager of the "Polly of the Circus" company went last Friday to the children's society to apply for a permit for six-year-old Burton James to take the part of Willie in the production, he got one which goes into effect to-morrow, Sept. 1. When the management of the theatre found that six-year-old Burton James's permit only went into effect to-morrow they had to put an adult in the boy's part. Mabel Taliaferro stepped into the breach in order to help out her younger sister's opening night. Mabel is small and weighs only 89 pounds. Agents Barclay and Bosch of the children's society, when they saw her, thought she was six-year-old Burton James and went behind the scenes to investigate.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Mrs. Russell Colt (Miss Ethel Barrymore) was among those who saw "The Flag Lieutenant" at the Criterion last night. Mr. and Mrs. Colt, with John Drew, and Miss Mary Boland, Mr. Drew's leading woman, occupied a box, which was visited by a number of persons during the intermissions.

Brass buttons, gold lace, the rattle of musketry, the boom of big guns, and, at the finish, a band playing "God Save the King"—which people who prefer it may mistake for "My Country 'Tis of Thee," thereby remaining properly patriotic—even honors for two deserving heroes, and everybody happy—those are the net results of Major W. P. Drury and Leo Trevor's "The Flag Lieutenant," acted for the first time here at the Criterion last night by an excellently balanced company, headed by Bruce McRae and Isbelle Irving.

Written for Cyril Maude, the most charming of the younger comedians in London, and with whom it was a great success, the play was obviously inspired by "The Second in Command," in which he had previously scored. Here the story is told in a navy environment instead of in the army, with "Dicky" Lascelles, the flag lieutenant, a happy-go-lucky amateur humorist, getting himself charged with cowardice, after having done a daring deed, the credit of which he allows to go to his old pal "Bill" Thesiger, who had befriended him years before, and who, though no less deserving than himself, has always missed the rewards of good service.

The details of the story have already been told several times in these columns, and need not be told again. Nor would they add to the enjoyment of prospective visitors to the Criterion, for whatever interest the play may hold is rather as a romantic bit of fiction than as any important document in life, literature, or drama. The authors write pleasantly with an agreeable vein of comedy running placidly through the more stirring incidents of the action, which begins in the Admiral's after cabin, passes to a British camp in Kandia, with a sort of relief of Lucknow episode to ring down the second curtain, and eventuates on the quarterdeck of H. M. S. Royal Edward, where, when everything is tied up in a hard knot, the long arm of coincidence and an open skylight combine to save the hero from disgrace and set him right in the eyes of the woman whom he loves. She, by the way, has remained true under fire, and deserves her happiness. If you would know how the open skylight figures let it be understood that through this the Vice Admiral, the Hon. Sir Berkeley Wynne, K. C. B., overhears a conversation which he was not meant to hear. This enables him to step in and inform all of Dicky's friends and—the gossips, who it is to be assumed are to discontinue gossiping from that time forth, at least as regards the lucky "Dicky."

There is more movement to the first and second acts than to the third, and the fourth is rather thin, but the play, taken in its entirety, is pleasant, light entertainment, though much of it is absurd viewed in the light of fact.

The acting, too, is entirely agreeable with Mr. Bruce McRae, clean-cut, direct, and wholesome, making Dicky Lascelles somewhat more seriously sentimental than Mr. Maude made him, but making him thoroughly likable at that. So there is natural satisfaction when he wins the beautiful Lady Hermione Wynne, played with much sweetness by Miss Vera McChord. Contrasted to Dicky is the unluck Thesiger, played efficiently and moodily by Francis Carlyle, but with occasional overemphasis of intensity in stressful moments.

The best of the women's rôles falls to Miss Isabel Irving, who looks charming in several exceptionally handsome gowns, and who plays with admirable lightness and variety, though there are some depths to the rôle which she has not yet quite sounded.

Colorful bits were nicely handled by C. Leslie Allen and George K. Roland. Helen Freeman was natural and easy, while Lumsden Hare, George Probert, Basil Hallam, Rosa Rand, and Adelina Wheatcroft were other excellent principals in the generally admirable cast.

Only one change in the English text was necessary, it seems, to make the play intelligible to American audiences. A cockney seaman, with a bad thirst, sadly referred to a saloon, and his cockney companion pretended to understand that he meant a "pub."

Little things like that, however, needn't count.

GARDINER SCORNS $2,000 FEE.

Put in Bill for $15,000 to State and Won't Accept $2,000 Check.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 30.—Col. Asa Bird Gardiner returned to-day to State Treasurer Dunn a check for $2,000, the amount allowed him for services rendered during the administration of former Attorney General Jackson in representing the State in opposition to the attempt made to take Thaw to Pittsburg for his bankruptcy hearing.

Col. Gardiner presented a bill for $15,000. In a letter accompanying the check he says he had rendered no bill for such an amount as allowed, and does not propose to accept it. He is summering in the Catskills, and says he will come to Albany later to see about his compensation.

Mr. Gardiner's bill, with several others, aggregating about $150,000, was left unpaid during Mr. Jackson's administration. The Legislature appointed a special committee to consider these bills and appropriated $75,000 to meet the bills audited by the committee.

The committee recommended that the expenses incurred by special counsel designated by Mr. Jackson should first be paid. This practically took up all the appropriation, except that in the smaller accounts it was possible to make some payment for services.

CHORUS AS ROOSTERS IN PLAY AT CIRCLE

Twenty Girls So Made Up for Chicken Song in McIntyre and Heath's "In Hayti."

LIVE BIRDS INTRODUCED

Some Lively Times in the Piece, with Finales Arranged to Include Singing and Dancing.

McINTYRE AND HEATH IN HAYTI. A musical comedy by John J. McNally. Music and lyrics by Jerome and Schwartz. Circle Theatre.

Bizzy Izzi Rosenstein.....Julian Rose
Rosey Rosenstein.....Mabel Sealby
Timothy Burke O'Malley.....Toby Lyons
Col. Scott.....Alfred Fisher

Florence Forcem.....Adele Rowland
Otto Winne.....Otto Johnson

When twenty odd girls in the chorus of "McIntyre and Heath in Hayti," which opened at the Circle Theatre last night, appeared in the finale of the second act made up as roosetrs and sang "Chicken" with Miss Marion Stanley there was much applause. The audience was still more amused when the black-faced comedians walked across the stage carrying live chickens which flapped their wings and tried to escape. Mr. Heath's chickens took the ensuing curtain calls with him, but Mr. McIntyre's fled to their roost, and he looked in vain for them. Chickens are not so frequently seen on the New York stage now as they may be after "Chanteclair" is produced.

The audience may have been largely made up of McIntyre and Heath devotees, but it seemed to enjoy the new piece, and it is probable that there are enough admirers of the humor of this pair in New York to fill the theatre with laughing audiences for some time. They have again brought before the footlights in the characters which they have made well-known, and the show was lively when they were on the stage. Mr. McIntyre shooting craps and pegging the seven to come is an amusing figure, and the "onion bet" will probably be tried on unsuspecting countrymen in the hotel bars before long.

Jerome and Schwartz have provided some lively tunes for the piece. Fletcher Norton had one of the best ones, called "Come Toddle Along." "I Would Like to Correspond with You" and "Romeo and Juliet" are likely to be whistled. The finales were arranged as complicated song and dance numbers, and always succeeded in rousing the audience to call for repetitions.

Miss Adele Rowland appeared in the plot now and then. Some of the audience would have liked to see more of her.

There are three scenes in the new piece, the first of which takes place in French Lick, Ind. The other two happen in Haiti, where there is an attempt to make a President out of Geronimo Jobbs, played by James McIntyre. The rest of the plot is concerned with successful love affairs.

CAR REGISTER CAUSES DELAY.

While Inspectors Examine Broken Instrument Passengers Storm.

The register in a trolley car of the Flushing line of the New York & Queens County Electric Railway, with fully 100 passengers aboard, stopped recording yesterday just after the car had crossed the Flushing Bridge on its way to the Thirty-fourth Street Ferry in Long Island City. When the car reached the Woodside barns the motorman and conductor went inside and told the inspectors, who told the other employes, and they all came out to have a look at the clock.

In the meantime a procession of loaded cars came to a halt behind the first one. Unmindful of the anxiety of the 800 or more passengers to get to business, however, the railroad men took the clock down and examined it deliberately until the waiting passengers became so angry that serious trouble threatened.

At last the car with the disabled clock was sidetracked, the uncounted passengers loaded aboard another car, and the journey to the ferry resumed after a delay of more than twenty minutes.

James Bruyn Andrews.

James Bruyn Andrews, formerly United States Consul at Valencia, Spain, died on Friday at Aachen, Germany, having long been in poor health, on which account he had retired from his Consulship and had lived on the Riviera. He was born in New York, was graduated from Yale, and practiced law for a while. He left one son, Cyrus Field Andrews. His wife, who was a daughter of Cyrus W. Field, died several years ago.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

CLOSING NEAR DAY'S BEST

The recovery which was in progress during the second hour of trading on Saturday was carried considerably further yesterday, with such little resistance that at the close of the session such noteworthy gains were recorded as 5 points in Union Pacific, 2¾ in New York Central, 2⅜ in United States Steel, 3¼ in Southern Pacific, and many other gains, varying from fractions to 2 or 3 points. Last week bear traders made the most as a market influence of the disquieting reports regarding the condition of Mr. Harriman, and the selling which nominally, at least, was attributed to this influence, added very considerably to the existing short interest in the market. The action of the stock market yesterday suggested that this short interest was impelled to a somewhat hasty covering of part of its commitments in the market, prompted to this course by the further reassurances regarding the condition of Mr. Harriman which came to hand over Sunday, and which traders no longer felt comfortable in ignoring, as they ignored similar reassurances had from close associates of Mr. Harriman last week. The opening prices in the most active stocks yesterday showed substantial gains over Saturday's closing figures, and the movement was carried rapidly forward, until the whole list of active issues showed very substantial gains. There was some recession, followed by further recovery, the prices prevailing at the end of the session being only a little below the day's best figures. At the higher prices recorded the market did not maintain its activity, and the total trading for the day fell very considerably short of last week's average. The upward movement in United States Steel, which in point of activity was second only to Union Pacific, brought its price to within 1 point of its best record. Before the close of the market the financial district had the opportunity of perusing a statement issued by Mr. Harriman himself, in which he repeated in his own name the reassurances regarding his health which had previously been heard from his friends. If the statement of Mr. Harriman proves effective in diverting the Stock Exchange from the consideration of Mr. Harriman's health to more general influences he will in issuing this statement have performed a distinct service for the securities markets.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Wild Opening in Market.

It is seldom that there is such a wild opening in the stock market as that shown yesterday. There were premonitory symptoms before the opening in the eagerness of brokers to obtain their orders and get to the floor promptly, from which they reported the probability of very much higher prices. Orders given at the market were executed, of course, in many instances to the disgust of the trader, who had not expected to pay so high for his stock. Usually the orders given with a certain limit of price were not executed, the market opening away above them. The London prices themselves were a clue to the possibilities here and were accepted as more or less of a clear indication of what would happen. Some traders sold stocks on the opening on the theory that prices opened up so high that there must be a reaction, if only temporarily. This was true in some stocks, and profits were obtained accordingly.

Intuition of Customers.

When Union Pacific first appeared on the tape showing what appeared to be 120,000 shares bunched in the opening transaction there was excitement for a moment. Common sense showed transactions of such magnitude to be impossible, and the more modest 12,000 was accepted to be accurate even before the correction appeared on the tape. Out of town traders, either by instinct or because of good advice, were in evidence in the market to some extent. Several offices reported that their customers on vacation had become interested in the market and usually on the long side. This helped the initial advance to some extent. The regular customers who come down day in and day out did not seem to be blessed with such good intuition. Buying orders did not appear to be a plentiful local product except from professionals.

Stocks Strongly Held?

According to the theorists, stocks are now in strong hands. Under the present conditions in the market this statement may not be followed by the inevitable liquidation, but under ordinary circumstances this declaration would be merely preliminary to extreme market weakness. Whenever it is agreed either that stocks are in strong hands or that there are no stocks in the market there is usually a deluge of stocks, and extreme weakness immediately following. In the first place, the average observer has no way of telling whether stocks are in strong hands or weak hands, nor has he any way of telling whether stocks which do not seem to be in evidence to-day will be very much so to-morrow. Usually the confidence which compels the assertion that this is so or that is not so is of the excessive kind and based on optimism, probably, rather than anything else. It may not be assuming too much at the present time to assume that stocks are in strong hands. But that does not mean that these strong holders will continue to test their own strength by holding them indefinitely.

Professional Not Omniscient.

Certain professionals are credited with being selected to do this or that or the other thing in the market. They are supposed to carry out the wills and wishes of certain big men. One operator has been mentioned as the inspiration of certain movements in certain stocks recently. A young friend of his went to him on Friday evening with certain information, which the operator declared to be all wrong. The friend went to him again on Saturday, and was told rather petulantly that there was nothing in the story told at all. The story was verified in yesterday's market, and unless the operator in question had changed his mind and his position between noon Saturday and the opening yesterday he was a loser of a considerable amount of money in the market. If he had been that agent which he was supposed to be he would have had more accurate information even than his young friend.

Public Service Gas Co. for Jersey.

With the return of ex-Gov. Edward C. Stokes of New Jersey from Europe on Sunday, it was admitted in Newark yesterday that the purpose of his week's stay in England was to obtain the signature of Henry C. Kelsey and a few other holders of Essex County gas certificates and securities to an agreement to form a public service gas company on similar lines to those on which the Public Service Railway Company was made part of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey two years ago.

SOUTHERN COTTON CROP BAD.

Lowest Condition in Years Says Report of National Ginners' Association.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 30.—The report of the National Ginners' Association, made public this afternoon, gives the condition of cotton up to and including Aug. 24, as 64.1 per cent.

"This is the lowest condition in a number of years," the report says, "and indicates a crop of about 10,500,000 bales. An early frost would reduce these figures somewhat, and a late frost would probably increase the total yield to 11,000,000 bales.

The report of averages by States follows:

	P. C.		P. C.
Alabama	64	North Carolina	75
Arkansas	59	Oklahoma	58
Florida	76	South Carolina	76
Georgia	74	Tennessee	75
Louisiana	54	Texas	57
Mississippi	62	General average	64.1
Missouri	80

Ginners report that they ginned 1,565,185 bales last year in Texas, and they estimate they will gin 776,119 bales this year with average weather.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Rallies from Weak Opening—Closes Steady 3 to 10 Points Up.

Cotton was more active and generally firmer yesterday, with indications of a broadening outside demand, and closed steady 3 to 10 points higher.

The market opened steady, unchanged to 4 points lower, being influenced at first by disappointing cables, large Liverpool tenders and private cables reporting free Southern offerings. It quickly rallied, however, and reached the best point during the early afternoon.

The cold storm seemed to be at its worst in Northern Mexico, and only light showers occurred in Texas over Sunday.

THE FOREIGN MARKETS.

Harriman Issues Strengthen Trading on the London Exchange.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—Money was quiet and plentiful on the market to-day and discounts were steady. The Continent secured the bulk of the gold available, something over $5,000,000.

Trading on the Stock Exchange was quiet but steady, with American securities the feature. Gilt-edged securities and foreigners were upheld by investment buying. Argentine rails were supported on crop prospects, but home rails and Kaffirs were neglected. Grand Trunk was easy on the disappointing July statement.

American securities opened firm and above parity. Later the market showed further strength under the lead of the Harriman issues, and at noon prices ranged from one-half to three points over Saturday's New York closing. Bear covering caused the spurt in the Harriman issues, the entire list advancing in sympathy. Later New York support raised values further. There was reaction near the close, but the market finished steady, with a hardening tendency.

Bar silver steady at 23⅞d per ounce.

Money, ½@¾ per cent.

PARIS, Aug. 30.—Trading on the Bourse to-day was firm.

At closing, 3 per cent. rentes were 98f 20c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 17c for checks.

BERLIN, Aug. 30.—Trading on the Boerse to-day was inactive and hesitating on account of the settlement.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Monday.

Heavy covering of shorts on the Consolidated Stock Exchange was started by the opening advance in prices, and for a time the market ruled above the New York Stock Exchange quotations. On the high levels later, however, the trading element put out fresh short lines. Low prices for the day were above the other board in a number of important instances, while high prices in several cases were under. The number of issues dealt in was sixty-three, and the total sales were 77,635 shares, with Union Pacific the most active issue and Reading next.

CITY BANK EXPECTS A GOVERNMENT LOAN

TREASURY BALANCE SMALL

Now Down to $29,000,000 and Expenses Increasing and No Provision for Canal Expenditures.

The belief recently expressed in financial circles here and in Washington that the Government would avoid the necessity of issuing certificates of indebtedness to meet the deficit between expenses and revenues this year, is qualified in the September issue of the National City Bank circular. The circular points out that the increase in revenues during the last two months has been largely due to heavy importations in anticipation of higher tariffs, and may not continue.

Meanwhile, with expenditures increasing and no provision made for the $3,000,000 a month expense of carrying on the work of the Panama Canal, the City Bank officials see the possibility of temporary financing.

On this point the circular says:

"Whether it will be necessary to issue certificates of indebtedness has not yet been definitely determined, but the record of receipts and expenditures for July and August would indicate that the Treasury will likely be required to do so. Revenues are meeting all expectations, customs showing an increase in the two months of about $17,000,000 over July and August, 1908. But some of this increase was due to heavy importations, in anticipation of higher rates under some schedules of the new tariff. Internal revenues show in the two months an increase of $1,000,000 over the same two months a year ago, while miscellaneous items are $4,000,000 less. This falling off is due to the final settlement of the Central Pacific Railroad debt a year ago, which largely augmented the miscellaneous receipts last year.

"The ordinary expenditures are heavier by $8,000,000 than for the same two months of 1908. With a working balance in the Treasurer's office now of only $29,000,000, exclusive of subsidiary and minor coins and bullion, unless the new tariff should produce more revenue rapidly, or unless expenditures should decline sharply, neither of which is likely, the Treasury will be obliged to do some temporary financing. This view is strengthened by the fact that no provision has been made for Panama Canal expenditures, which must be met at the rate of about $3,000,000 a month.

"In the event that certificates are issued it should be borne in mind that the Secretary of the Treasury may put them out for any length of time he thinks best not exceeding one year. The date of their maturity may be even more important to the country than the time of issue, since a maturity at any time from September to December, inclusive, would require their payment when money is likely to be dear. It might be less burdensome to the Government to issue either six or nine months certificates, and it would certainly be less burdensome to the financial community to subscribe for them before money is made scarce by the usual Autumn demands.

"So far as the Treasury is concerned, the ideal maturity of any short time loan will always be at some time of the year when money is apt to be plentiful. This would insure ease in re-financing the maturing obligations in case it should be inconvenient to part with funds for their redemption."

TOBACCO SOCIETY SUED.

Independent Manufacturers Ask Damages from Burley Growers.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 30.—Clark & Scott, independent tobacco manufacturers of Scranton, Penn., to-day filed suit in the Federal Court in Covington, Ky., against the Burley Tobacco Society, Clarence Lebus, the President, and ten other men as defendants. They demand $135,520 damages, on the ground that they were overcharged on tobacco they were obliged to buy from the Burley Tobacco Society.

The suit is filed under the Sherman Anti-Trust law, and the Burley Society is charged with being a monopoly in restraint of trade. Nineteen Kentucky tobacco growers and two Ohio growers are named as party defendants. The Burley Society is charged with entering into a conspiracy with them to control the white burley tobacco market in the United States. They allege that in 1908 they were unable to buy white burley tobacco in the open market, and were compelled to go to the Burley Society for the product; that in 1906 the plaintiffs had to pay 18 cents per pound, when the tobacco was really worth only 8 cents; that in 1907 the Burley Society forced them to pay 17 cents and a fraction per pound, when the product was worth but 8 cents.

In the petition the Burley Society is described as a branch of the Society of Equity.

The attorneys for the plaintiffs declare they will also ask for an injunction against the disposal of the assets of the Burley Society, alleged to amount to $1,000,000.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 30.—The Burley Society, representing the growers who pooled the crop of the Blue Grass or Central Kentucky Counties, rose to power by its successful consummation of an $8,000,000 deal in 1908 with the American Tobacco Company, disposing of 75 per cent. of the 1906 and 1907 white burley crops. Several independent dealers for whom had been reserved the remainder claimed they had been overcharged, and the suit to-day is probably only the first of many.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT—Readjustment of values yesterday followed bearish news over Sunday, and prices made a new record for the crop. Near the close a moderate rally occurred, an attempt by early short sellers to cover, but final prices of the day were nevertheless ⅞ to 1c lower than Saturday. Notwithstanding the break, there was no disposition on the part of exporters to buy, and part of Liverpool's decline of 1¾ to 2½d was due to continued heavy offerings from Russia. All interior points received 1,441,000 bushels, compared

SHARP EYE ON THE MAHATMAS

Acting Capt. Dunn of the Detective Bureau said yesterday that Detectives McConville and Nelson had not reported that there was any complainant who would appear against the inmates of Mme. Ann O'Delia Diss Debar's Mahatma Institute, at 32 East Thirty-third Street, upon which they could be arrested, and that until such complainant appeared the police would not interfere with the school of the Mahatmas.

Nevertheless, Lieut. McConville and two or three other detectives went to the Mahatma Institute again yesterday, interviewed Mme. Diss Debar, Initiate 2-6 David, and the two 3-7 Initiates of the First Degree, Mrs. Lillian Hobart French and Mrs. Frances Belden. They then took away some letters and papers, chief among them being a letter sne professed to have received from Archbishop Farley, but the body of which she would not show the detectives on Saturday, when they made their first call.

Mgr. Lavelle has disgustedly refused to talk about the possibility of Archbishop Farley's having written to Mme. Diss Debar, addressing her as "Abbess," as she claims. Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish denies that she was ever treated by the ancient and portly ex-convict. George D. Mackay, the banker, says that he did have the old woman at his farm last year for a little while, as it was his custom to give a country outing to old people in pecuniary distress.

And yesterday afternoon the professed reincarnation of Mme. Helena Petrovna Blavatsky and other worthies fulminated against all of these, saying they were afraid to stand by her now that the full light of publicity was on her.

The police have received some complaints about Mme. Diss Debar's vibratory treatment of disease at a distance. The inmates of the Mahatma Institute have promised not to charge for their lessons how to gain physical immortality, and there now seems to be little chance of revenue.

Mme. Ann O'Delia Diss Debar and Initiate 2-6 David are expected by the police, therefore, to evanesce, or, esoterically speaking, to dematerialize hence presently.

SUBWAY SAMARITAN FINED $1.

Dr. Roos Disorderly in Helping Old Clothes Man, Says the Court.

Dr. Lester L. Roos of 233 West 113th Street, who on last Friday asserted the right of a passenger to carry a bundle of old clothes into the Subway in defiance of the rules of the Interborough Company, was fined $1 by Magistrate House in Harlem Court yesterday on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Dr. Roos went into the 110th Street and Lenox Avenue station of the Subway on Friday just as the ticket seller was telling Harris Silverstein, an old-clothes dealer of 1,683 Madison Avenue that he could not take a large bundle of old clothes into the cars.

"Give it to me, I'll take it in," declared Dr. Roos. The ticket chopper stopped him, and a special policeman came up from Ninety-sixth Street and arrested Dr. Roos.

The bundle was produced in court and found to contain several suits of clothes, a pair of shoes, and a gallon demijohn. Three passengers testified that Dr. Roos created no disturbance and had not blocked the passage as charged, but Magistrate House decided that he was guilty of "conduct tending to a breach of the peace," and assessed the fine, which the doctor paid.

MORGAN TILLINGHAST DEAD.

Morgan Tillinghast, a well-known mining engineer, died suddenly yesterday morning while out in his catboat on Great South Bay, off his home, the Old Swan House, at Islip, L. I. Heart trouble was the cause. He left a widow and a four-year old daughter.

Mr. Tillinghast was a son of Philip Tillinghast, formerly a well-known Wall Street man, and now a lawyer, who is in the West. On his maternal side, a granduncle was United States Senator William Sprague, who was at one time Governor of Rhode Island. Mr. Tillinghast, who was just over thirty years old, was a fine specimen of young manhood, and appeared to be in the best of health prior to going out on the water. His brother, Philip, was with him when he was seized. He was a member of many clubs, including the Calumet, Racquet, and Rittenhouse of Philadelphia. An aunt is Miss Mary Tillinghast of 3 Washington Square North.

STOLEN AUTO DRIVER HELD.

Hugo Zelle of 20 Jane Street admitted in the West Side Court yesterday that he had gone off with a $3,000 automobile which did not belong to him on Saturday night to have a good time, and was held in $2,000 bail for trial by Magistrate O'Connor.

He got into the car as it stood in front of the Hotel Royal in Forty-fourth Street, with a number of young men and women, and had an eight hour-frolic through Long Island before he was caught on his way home.

He denied that he intended to steal the machine, but admitted that he was tempted to take his friends for a ride when he saw it standing idle with no one to watch it.

DANGER IN "BOOK" EDUCATION.

Modern Educational Methods Criticised by Booker T. Washington.

Modern educational methods were severely criticised by Booker T. Washington at the annual dinner of the Suffolk County Board of Trade at the Château des Beaux-Arts, Huntington, L. I., yesterday. He urged especially the necessity of less of the cultural and more of the practical idea in curricula to meet the needs of the age.

"In educating the negro race at Tuskegee Institute, we are taking advantage of the mistakes of older races than ours in the matter of education," declared Mr. Washington. "The old idea of education was that it was given for culture's sake. The new idea seeks to combine culture with usefulness. The old idea encouraged learning through the medium of books. The new idea seeks to give knowledge by studying the things themselves. This is the idea that we employ at Tuskegee.

"Great danger lurks in book education. It increases the student's wants without giving him any means of satisfying these same wants.—Education should seek to make a man a greater producer, when educated, than he was when uneducated. Nowadays he is too frequently a larger consumer than he is a producer.

"When we began our work we appreciated that our race was engaged in agriculture, mechanical pursuits, and housekeeping. So we have made a specialty of these subjects. And we are striving to keep our students in the country. If they see pictures of New York in books, they are apt to lose interest in the country and flee to New York, so we are avoiding books of this character as much as possible."

Rapacious land boom promoters received excoriating criticism from Waunhope Lynn, Judge of the Municipal Court. He declared that they were wreckers of bank accounts and warned the people of Suffolk County against permitting them to invade their territory. He urged the District Attorney of the county to be vigilant in protecting the interests of the people in this regard.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Importers of Necklaces, Collars, Combs, and Bracelets Must Pay 60 Per Cent.

The Board of United States General Appraisers has taken adverse action on a protest filed by the F. William Gertzen Company of New York regarding the classification of collars and necklaces composed of imitation pearls strung. They were assessed by Collector Loeb under the provision for "jewelry" with a tax of 60 per cent., whereas the importers set up the contention that the articles should be admitted at 20 per cent. as being "imitation precious stones." General Appraiser Sharretts, who writes the decision for the board, holds that the imposition of the higher duty was correct and must stand.

Another protest overruled stands in the name of the Royal Metal Manufacturing Company of this city. The Collector assessed enameled buckles and pins as "jewelry." This classification was opposed by the importers, who alleged that the goods should be admitted at rates varying from 20 to 45 per cent. under the provisions for "imitation precious stones, manufactures of glass, or manufactures of metal. None of these claims, however, is held by the board to be appropriate.

B. Altman & Co. and others were unsuccessful in securing the lowering of assessments on importations of women's side and back combs composed of celluloid mounted with metal, plated with gold, hatpins with decorated metal heads, and goldplated bracelets. The board was unwilling to grant a reduction of the 60 per cent. duty levied by the Collector.

HAFFEN, WEEPING, BLAMES HIS FOES

Ousted Borough Head Says Removal Was Due to a Bitterly Played Game of Politics.

MAY RUN INDEPENDENTLY

Bronx Aldermen Favor Alderman Murphy and May Elect Him—Grand Jury May Hear Haffen Evidence.

With no probability that the Bronx Aldermen will revoke the decree of Gov. Hughes in removing Louis F. Haffen as President of the Borough of the Bronx, the politicians yesterday were speculating whether Mr. Haffen would appeal to the voters of his home borough for vindication at the general election this Fall.

Mr. Haffen himself would say nothing on this phase of his attitude. He left his home at 9 o'clock yesterday morning and spent part of the day at his office in the Bronx Borough Hall. Later in the day he went to the office of ex-Judge Morgan J. O'Brien for a conference. The Governor's formal order of removal, which arrived here from Albany by messenger yesterday afternoon, was served on Mr. Haffen at his home last night.

In a statement made to the newspapers yesterday, Mr. Haffen ascribed his downfall to the activities of political enemies. Tears were streaming down his cheek as he delivered his valedictory. He had taken ample time to prepare it. The reporters had been kept waiting from early morning until 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Here is what Mr. Haffen said:

"This is a fine reward for twenty-six and a half years of honest, faithful, and efficient service to the people. I have very little to say at this time. I have not as yet been officially notified of my removal. I can only say now that it has been the result of a bitterly played game of partisan politics, furthered by my political foes with a view of seeking to besmirch my official character by contending that my removal was in the interest of good government."

"The usual excuse of a man who has nothing better to offer under such circumstances," said Commissioner of Accounts John Purroy Mitchel when told of Mr. Haffen's statement.

A great change had been wrought in the features of the former Borough President. He presented a countenance haggard and careworn. He was sobbing as he spoke.

While Mr. Haffen remained silent on the subject, it was said by a man familiar with the political situation in the Bronx who claimed to know the deposed Borough President's intentions, that he would seek vindication at the polls in case the Bronx Aldermen—as they are almost certain to do—should fail to re-elect him.

Haffen On Independent Ticket?

For some time Bronx Republicans have been aware of a movement carried on quietly with a view of organizing a campaign for Mr. Haffen as an independent candidate this Fall for the office he now holds. Word has been received in the Republican camp that the political columns of the local newspaper controlled by the Republicans had "better go easy on Haffen," as he might be their ally in the municipal campaign. It is not doubted that the Republicans would take off their coats and work like beavers to further a Haffen campaign in the Bronx, because with three borough tickets and Haffen leading the third ticket the Tammany ticket would almost certainly go down to defeat, even if Haffen should not win.

The order of removal was brought to the City Hall by B. W. Smith, a messenger attached to the Executive offices at Albany. The messenger did not arrive until 4:32 o'clock yesterday afternoon, although he left the capital on Sunday evening. He had taken passage on a steamboat which happened to run on a sandbar just below Albany, and remained there all night, with the result that she did not reach her pier in this city until after 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Messenger Smith hurried to the City Hall. By the time he arrived Acting Mayor McGowan had left for the day and was on his way to Donnelly's Grove at College Point to attend "Big Tim" Sullivan's outing. The messenger left the sealed envelope containing the order of removal with Fire Captain Crowley, who was mounting guard at the Mayor's office.

Before the Mayor left after his recent visit to the city, he told his friends that he would interrupt his vacation in case the Governor should order Mr. Haffen's removal. It is expected that Mayor McClellan will return from Winter Harbor, Me., in time to preside.

It was said at the City Hall yesterday afternoon that the call for the meeting to select Haffen's successor probably would go out to-day, and that the meeting would be held on Thursday after the expiration of the two days' notice required by law.

With the certainty that Haffen will not be re-elected, several candidates have appeared for his place. Haffen has a candidate of his own in John F. Murray, who has been his Superintendent of Public Works for some years. Murray came out of the Haffen investigation unscathed, the worst that could be shown against him being that he was a stockholder in the Geiszler-Haas Realty Company. Geiszler, the senior member of that firm, was until recently Superintendent of Highways in the Borough of the Bronx. He went to Florida for his health after the Haffen investigation began. Haffen's friends have been working hard among the Bronx Aldermen to bring about the election of Murray, as their choice, with Haffen eliminated. It is not believed that they will be able to control more than three of the eight Bronx Aldermen, however.

Alderman Murphy Leads for Place.

Arthur Murphy, Alderman and Democratic leader in the Thirty-fourth Assembly District, is favored by a majority of the Bronx Aldermen for the place left vacant through Haffen's removal. But Murphy is in the liquor business, and that may militate against him. If Tammany Leader Murphy should approve of his Bronx namesake, he will be chosen. This will be settled at a conference between Tammany Leader Murphy and some of his advisers and the Tammany district leaders and Aldermen from the Bronx, scheduled for this forenoon.

Congressman Joseph A. Goulden is the choice of a good many Bronx Democrats who are influential in borough affairs. Mr. Goulden, while more or less of an independent, is in good standing with the organization, and the sentiment for him in the Bronx has been attested to by his continuous re-election to the seat he now holds in Congress by Democrats in his home borough. Among the better type of Democrats in the Bronx Col. Goulden is regarded as an ideal candidate. He is a practical man of affairs, too. Col. Goulden is in the insurance business. He is a veteran of the civil war.

Jerome May Use Haffen Evidence.

District Attorney Jerome said yesterday in reply to questions that certain phases of the testimony offered at the Haffen investigation might be presented to the September Grand Jury. A year ago the Haffen charges were brought before the Grand Jury without result. A lot of new evidence has developed since. Some testimony given by Mr. Haffen, in reference to the Clason Point deal, Gov. Hughes in his decision declared "irreconcilable with the proved facts."

At the hearing yesterday in connection with the investigation of the office of Borough President Bird S. Coler of Brooklyn, which is being conducted by Commissioner of Accounts John Purroy Mitchel, ex-Mayor Frederick W. Wurster of Brooklyn testified that a mass of paving material ordered from the Wallabout Corporation Yard in January, 1906, for repairing the sidewalk in front of 170 Rodney Street, certainly had not been used for that purpose.

"I have lived at that address since 1884, when the house there was built for me," said the former Mayor, "and I am sure the sidewalk in front of my residence has not been flagged during all that time. I had some repairs done at my own expense a number of years ago."

J. N. Burdette a former chief engineer of the Friede Globe Tower Company, a construction concern which entertained close enough relations with Edward A. Laugan, Chief Elevator Inspector of the Brooklyn Building Department, to make him a stockholder, was then called to the stand by Commissioner Mitchel.

Burdette said he believed President Friede of the company had got Mr. Langan in for the reason that then it would not be necessary to pay him.

"Pay him for what?" asked Commissioner Mitchel.

"For anything in connection with the Building Department," said the witness.

RETURNS AFTER YEARS RICH.

Now McDonald, Who Made Fortune in West, Seeks Sister.

Michael McDonald, a native of Ireland, who made his fortune in California, appeared in Orange, N. J., yesterday looking for a sister whom he has not seen since he left Orange a score or more of years ago. The sister's name was Annie, and McDonald believes that she married. He wants to find her in order that he may bestow upon her in her old age the wealth that he has won in the West.

Nobody in Orange knows where the sister is, though some people remembered that eighteen or more years ago she ran a little grocery store.

McDonald went to Ireland first, after retiring from active business, and has only just returned from the old country. He applied to the police of Orange to help him find his sister. He left word that he would live at 45 Whitehall Street, New York, for the time being, but later would return West, if he fails to find his sister. He is 70 years old.

OFFERED BROOCH AS BAIL.

Arrest of Mrs. A. J. Stone's Chauffeur Halts Shopping Trip.

Sergt. James Nerney of the Motor Cycle Squad interrupted the shopping expedition yesterday morning of Mrs. A. J. Stone of Larchmont, wife of a Stock Exchange member, and Miss Spencer, also of Larchmont, by arresting William A. Broome, the Stone chauffeur, on Boston Post Road, charging him with speeding at the rate of thirty miles an hour. He also discovered that Broome had no chauffeur's license. In Morrisania Court Magistrate Kernochan held Broome in $400 bail for trial.

Broome got permission to go out with Nerney and explain matters to Mrs. Stone. Mrs. Stone absolutely refused to enter the court, but Miss Spencer went in with a diamond brooch worth about $2,000 and offered it as bail. Magistrate Kernochan was sorry, he said, that he couldn't accept it.

LIQUOR MEN EXHIBIT LINCOLN'S LICENSE

McGOWAN BOASTS OF CITY

"There Are No Dives Here," He Tells Delegates; "Show Me One and I Will Wipe It Out."

Facsimiles of a liquor license issued in 1833 to Abraham Lincoln and a partner were the souvenirs yesterday at the twenty-seventh annual convention of the Wine, Liquor, and Beer Dealers' Association of New York State, which opened in the Lexington Avenue Opera House, in Fifty-eighth Street, near Third Avenue. The souvenir shows that in those days the prices of drinks were very low compared with what they are now, whisky, for instance, selling at 12½ cents a pint.

The 600 delegates to the convention came from all parts of the State. They were welcomed by Acting Mayor McGowan, who, while referring to the association's avowed intention of putting out of business disreputable saloons and dives, said:

"There are no dives in New York. Show me one and I will wipe it out of existence."

Attending the convention yesterday, besides the 600 delegates, were 800 or 900 interested people from this city and from other States.

The Lincoln souvenirs were eagerly sought after, and before the end of the first day's meeting they were at a premium. The facsimile is sworn to as being a reproduction of the original records in the office of Charles L. Apel, present County Clerk of Sangamon County, whose office is at Springfield, Ill. It was dated March 8, 1833, the license being issued to William F. Berry for the firm of Berry & Lincoln to run a tavern at New Salem, Sangamon County, Ill., and is as follows:

Ordered that William F. Berry, in the name of "Berry and Lincoln," have license to keep a tavern in New Salem, to continue twelve months from this date, and that they pay one dollar in addition to six dollars heretofore paid as per Treasury receipt and that they be allowed the following rates, (viz:) French brandy, per pint, 25; peach brandy, per pint, 18¾; apple brandy, per pint, 12; Holland gin, per pint, 18¾; domestic, per pint, 12½; wine, 25; rum, 18¾; whiskey, 12½; breakfast, dinner, supper, 25; lodging, per night, 12½; horse, per night, 25; single meal, 12½; breakfast, dinner, or supper for stage passengers, 37½.

The Rev. W. A. Wasson of Riverhead, L. I., advocated that the liquor dealers and the clergymen join together in the fight against vicious drinking places. Prohibition, he declared, was not true temperance, but the saloon keeper who refused to sell intoxicants to the drunkard or to the man who already had too much was of great value in establishing real temperance. He agreed with Acting Mayor McGowan and President M. F. Farley of the State organization that there should be a liberal excise law strictly enforced, and not a strict excise law liberally enforced.

President T. McDonough of the National organization created a sensation by saying that he had violated the excise laws of Cleveland, Ohio. He had closed his place every Sunday for one year, he went on, until three business men, who worked on that day near his place, told him that they would give their patronage to some one else if he didn't keep open on Sunday as well as on week days. He opened on Sundays after that.

He told about having a drink in a saloon with the Chief of Police of Pittsburg, Penn. The lights were put out while they were drinking, he said, and then he, not wanting to "go dry," asked where they could keep on for a while. The Chief told him that all the 576 saloons closed at the legal hour, but there were 1,400 "speak easies" where drinks could be had. The Chief laid the existence of these to what he called the severe and "rotten" excise laws of Pittsburg, according to Mr. McDonough.

Mr. McDonough said that the Anti-Saloon League was growing fast in the West and that it was causing havoc to the trade there. Ninety-nine per cent. of the members of that organization, he said, were honest, right-minded men and women, but the other 1 per cent. were lawyers and preachers who had made failures in their own professions and had turned to the anti-saloon work for the money they could get by grafting.

"Let me tell of one little trick I know of," he went on. "There was an anti-saloon parade in Zanesville, Ohio, recently. A clergyman and a merchant stood on the street watching the parade. The preacher thanked God that he had had a chance to vote for a dry town. The merchant just then saw among fifty-odd dirty, unkempt children one little boy carrying a banner on which was written, 'My father is a drunkard.' It was the merchant's little boy. His mother had given permission for him to march in the parade, and he had been duly fixed up."

After yesterday's session the delegates marched behind Usher's Band to the Central Brewing Company's plant, at the foot of East Sixty-eighth Street, where they were shown around and then invited to a dinner in the building.

To-day an executive session will be held, at which officers will be elected.

SHOT BY A CAR THIEF.

Lehigh Railroad Detective Mortally Wounded—One Thief Wounded.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 30.—William Zimmer, a Lehigh Valley Railroad detective from Buffalo, was shot and probably mortally hurt in a running fight with car thieves at Batavia late last night.

Zimmer, Detective M. Bogardi, also of Buffalo, and Detective Ramaniski of Batavia surprised seven burglars at work on a Lehigh Valley Railroad car. One of the gang shot Zimmer, and the officers then fired six shots at the gang, mortally wounding "Mike" Miller of Batavia.

The alleged car thief and the detective were both taken to the Batavia Hospital.

"Some Forms of Student Associations in American Schools and Colleges," by Charles H. Livermore, President Adelphi College.

Next Saturday The New York Times will publish the fourth article in the series of seven on educational topics.

NEW YORK—Manhattan.

"My Son Having Failed Completely in his preliminary examinations for college, entered your school, and in one year he covered two regular school years of work as is done at most schools, and not only passed his examinations easily for college, but also with credit to himself and his school."

This extract of a letter from the mother of a recent student is one of a hundred or more, valued by Mr. Groff, showing the high grade of success he has had for twelve years.

THE GROFF SCHOOL
228 West 72d St., New York,
is ideal and exceptional as a boarding and day school.
If a boy is bright and wishes to make rapid progress he is not held back by reason of any other boy, or by the old "grade system." If he is timid or nervous, he is encouraged; if he is careless, interest in his studies is secured; if he does not know how to apply himself, he is taught. To this individual method of teaching is due the Groff School's wonderful success, and "success is what talks."
A thoroughly up-to-date commercial course for boys who do not desire to go to college.
A most liberal system of athletics, wisely directed.
All work prepared at the school under the direction and assistance of expert teachers, unless home work is preferred. Reopens Sept. 29th. Call on or address the Principal (now at the school),
